Today's Features

6 Wayne's World

Wayne Simmons is gearing up for a stellar senior year... a senior year on the football field that is. Clemson's starting outside linebacker received his undergraduate degree before the year even started.

49 The Voice of the Tigers

Jim Phillips has been the voice of Clemson sports since 1968. Probably half of the fans listening to tonight's game have never heard anyone else provide the play-by-play of Clemson sporting events. Now in his 25th year, Phillips admits he wouldn't have gotten this job today.

50 Ashley Sheppard

Clemson fans have seen Sheppard execute some of the most fierce hits in the ACC over the last four years. Sheppard's mother has not seen any of them, however, as she is yet to see her son play a game in person. No Clemson opponent would agree with her reason for staying away from Death Valley.

61 Ancient Football

Would you believe a form of football was played in the vicinity of Death Valley as far back as 1762?

63 National Coach of the Year

Clemson track coach Bob Pollock has used the family approach to make the Tiger track program among the best in the nation.

64 Today's Band Feature

IPTAY does a lot more for Clemson University than just provide football scholarships. The Tiger Band would be the first to proclaim the positive effect Clemson's scholarship foundation has on its organization.

77 Clemson Olympians

Former Tigers Gigi Fernandez and Mark McKoy captured the gold in Barcelona last month, the first former Clemson athletes to do so.

107 Great Games in Death Valley

Although the game was not very competitive, any Tiger fan who was in Memorial Stadium for the 1983 Maryland game will tell you it was one of the most memorable days in the 50 years of this facility. It might be the most dominant performance by a Clemson team over a ranked opponent in Tiger annals.

109 IPTAY Athlete of the Year

James Trapp was an NCAA Champion and a member of three top 20 programs at Clemson last year and is the recipient of the 1991-92 IPTAY Athlete of the Year award. The award is presented by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Willimon.

111 Jeff Bostic

He wasn't an All-American during his years on three Clemson bowl teams, but he has had one of the more celebrated careers of any pro lineman in ACC history. Jeff Bostic already has three Super Bowl rings in his possession and is looking for more.

Today's Game

Pair of Tigers on Butkus Award List

Clemson outside linebackers Wayne Simmons and Ashley Sheppard are among 49 preseason candidates for the 1992 Dick Butkus Award. The honor is presented to the top collegiate linebacker in the nation by the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando, FL. Ten semifinalists will be announced at midseason and the three finalists will be announced in late November. The winner will be announced on Saturday, December 12 at the Butkus Award Ceremonies in Orlando.

Clemson has had a representative in at least the final 10 in each of the last two years. Levon Kirkland made it to the final five in 1990, while Ed McDaniel reached the final 10 last year.

Simmons enters the Florida State game with 25 career tackles for loss and 12.5 career sacks, both 11th on the all-time Clemson list. He has 153 career tackles and 14 passes broken up. He has played in 37 straight games. Sheppard is also a veteran of 37 straight games and has 16 career tackles for loss and 7.5 career sacks. He has 133 career tackles, including a Clemson career record 43 special teams stops. He had eight tackles in the season opener.

Clemson is one of nine schools with two nominees among the 49 players selected. The other schools with two each are Miami (FL), Texas A&M, Oklahoma, Colorado, Washington, Penn State, Ohio State and California. The only other ACC players on the list are Marvin Jones of Florida State, Tyler Lawrence of N.C. State and Tommy Thigpen of North Carolina.

Jones Has Career Day

While Clemson has two Butkus Award Candidates in Ashley Sheppard and Wayne Simmons, it was inside linebacker Tim Jones who had the top defensive day for the Tigers against Ball State. The sophomore from Rock Hill, SC had a career high 12 tackles, including 11 first hits. He also had a career high two tackles for loss and an interception. That interception in the fourth period led to Clemson's lead touchdown in the fourth period.

Jones had 22 tackles all of last year as a red-shirt freshman. He played just 140 plays all season. Jones was in for 81 defensive plays against Ball State.

O'Neal Posts All-America Day

Robert O'Neal had a great start to what could be an All-America season. The senior safety who has a chance to become Clemson's first four-time first or second-team All-ACC selection, had a career high 11 tackles, including seven first hits, had a pass deflection and an interception. It was the 11th interception of O'Neal's career, which moves him into a tie for fourth place in Clemson history in interceptions. The PBU was the 29th of his career, which is now fifth in Clemson history. Only Donnell Woolford, Delton Hall, Dexter Davis and Terry Kinard have more PBUs than O'Neal in Clemson history.

Clemson with Large Line

Clemson might have the largest starting offensive line in the nation, perhaps in all of football.

This year's starting group of Brent LeJeune (306), Stacy Seegars (320), Les Hall (313), Jeff Fortner (294) and John Harris (272) combine to average 301 pounds. This is the largest average for the starting five interior linemen in Clemson history. In fact, it is the largest group by almost 15 pounds. The 1991 team averaged 286.2 pounds across the front five on the offensive line.

It also proved to be an iron line in the season opener. Seegars, Hall and Fortner all played the entire game from scrimmage (65 snaps). Hall had the top outing with a career high nine knock-down blocks and an 82 percent grade. Seegars led the guards with a 74 percent grade and seven knockdown blocks.

Here is a rundown of how the average weight of the Clemson offensive line has increased over the years:

1930	180.4	1970	221.0
1935	194.6	1975	232.6
1940	193.0	1980	238.0
1945	195.0	1985	258.0
1950	199.4	1990	269.6
1955	213.6	1991	286.2
1960	224.8	1992	301.0
1965	226.4

One other note of interest; the last Clemson starting offensive lineman who failed to weigh over 200 pounds was John Bolubasz, who started at center at 199 pounds in 1973. The first 300-pound starters in Clemson history (offensive lineman) was just last year when Stacy Seegars (320) and Kelvin Hankins (305) started in the offensive line.

Tigers with Florida State Ties

Two members of the Clemson staff have strong ties to Florida State. Quarterback coach Rick Stockstill was the starting quarterback for the Seminoles between 1979 and 1981 and is a 1982 FSU graduate. He quarterbacked Florida State in the 1980 and 1981 Orange Bowls. FSU was ranked sixth in 1979 and fifth in 1980. He is in his fourth year as the Clemson quarterbacks coach. In that time Clemson is 30-6-1. In his first year the Tigers set a school record for completion percentage with a 60 percent mark. Last year the Tigers led the ACC in total offense.

Assistant Athletic Director and Head Trainer Fred Hoover is also a Florida State graduate. Hoover is in his 33rd year at Clemson, as he has been on the staff since 1959. The National Hall of Fame Trainer who is a 1953 Florida State graduate served as the FSU trainer in 1952-53 and 1957-58. Hoover is an ironman of sorts. He has worked 365 consecutive Clemson football games.

First Home Night Game since 1956

When Clemson meets Florida State on Saturday it will be the first home night game for the Tigers in Death Valley since September 22, 1956. Frank Howard's Tigers defeated Presbyterian 27-7 in that contest. Clemson stopped holding night home games because its fans drive from long distances to attend the contests.

Clemson has a 12-1-1 record in home night games over the years. The only loss was to Wake Forest in 1949 (21-35) and the only tie was to Mississippi State that same season (7-7). Nine of the 12 victories came against Presbyterian. Clemson traditionally opened the season with a game against PC and between 1948 and 1956, all those game were at night.

Over the years Clemson has a better record at night than it does overall. Clemson is 41-23 at night over the years, regardless of site, a .640 winning percentage. The Clemson program has a 59.2 winning percentage in all games in its 97-year history.

Clemson has been successful at night in recent years. Clemson has won five of its last six night games, including a 34-23 win over Florida State in Tallahassee in 1989. The Tigers did not play a night game between 1959 and 1970 and did not win a night game between 1959 and 1976. The 17-year streak was broken in a 15-12 win at Florida State.

Series Review

Florida State holds a 3-2 advantage in the series dating back to a 38-13 FSU win in 1970. Clemson won the last meeting, 34-23 at Tallahassee in 1989. Florida State won the last meeting between the two teams in Death Valley, 24-21 in 1988. Clemson's other win took place in 1976, 15-12, in Tallahassee, while FSU won at Clemson, 43-7.

This will be Ken Hatfield's first meeting against Bobby Bowden or Florida State. Clemson is 2-1 against Coach Bowden, one of just five schools to have a winning record against Bowden (min. two games). On the other side of the coin, Florida State has a 2-0 record against Clemson in Death

Sophomore Tim Jones led Clemson in tackles in the win over Ball State.

Valley, one of just three schools to have a winning record against the Tigers in Memorial Stadium (min 2 games played). Auburn and Alabama are the other schools with a winning mark against Clemson in Death Valley.

Burnette Has Outstanding Debut

Clemson first-year freshman Derek Burnette had quite a first game as a Tiger. The native of Columbus, GA who played at the same high school as Tiger Brentson Buckner, had 11 stops in the win over Ball State. That is the second most tackles in a game by a first-year freshman in Clemson history and the most ever by a first-year freshman in his first game.

The Clemson record for tackles by a first-year freshman is 14, set by Bubba Brown against Florida State in 1976. Brown went on to become (and still is) Clemson's all-time leading tackler with 515. Ironically, Burnette wears the same number that Brown wore, 47. The Clemson record for tackles in a game by a freshman, red-shirt or first-year, is 20, set by Henry Walls against Doug Flutie and Boston College in 1983.

Burnette's total against Ball State was the most by any Clemson freshman (red-shirt or first-year) since Ed McDaniel had 14 in the win over Oklahoma in the 1989 Florida Citrus Bowl.

Clemson & FSU Among Nation's Best

Clemson and Florida State ranked among the top three teams in the nation in winning percentage over the last five years (1987-91). Clemson ranked third best with a 82.5 winning percentage, while Florida State was second at 86.9. Only Miami (.933) had a better record than the two teams who will face off on Saturday night in Death Valley.

Both Clemson and Florida State have been among the nation's best for quite some time. In games between 1985-91, the Tigers were seventh best (.768) and Florida State was second (.818). In games between 1988-91, the Tigers were fifth and Florida State was third. Clemson and Miami (FL) are the only teams in the nation to have two losses or fewer every year since 1986. Clemson, Miami (FL) and Michigan are the only teams in the nation to rank in the final AP top 20 each of the last six seasons.

Hatfield, Bowden Among Best since 1982

Saturday evening's game will be between two of the top coaches in college football. Only four coaches have taken a team to a bowl game 10 straight years and two of them will be facing off in the Clemson-Florida State game. Ken Hatfield, Bobby Bowden, Tom Osborne (Nebraska) and LaVell Edwards (BYU) are the only coaches to take a team to bowls between 1982-91.

When it comes to top 20 seasons and 10-wins seasons both coaches are also among the best. Bowden has had 12 top 20 seasons in his career, third best among active coaches, while Hatfield has had seven top 20 teams, including each of his first two Clemson teams. He is one of just six coaches to take three different programs to a top 20 season. Bowden has had eight 10-win seasons in his career, sixth most in the history of college football. Hatfield has had five 10-win seasons, 12th most in the history of college football. Hatfield and Dan Devine are the only coaches to take three different programs to a 10-win season.

Both Bowden and Hatfield are ranked among the best in overall games the last 10 years. In games played between 1982-91 Hatfield has the fourth best winning percentage, while Bowden has the third best percentage. In total victories, Hatfield and Bowden are tied with 92 apiece.

Ranked Teams in Death Valley

Clemson and Florida State are both ranked in the top 20 this week in the AP poll. The Tigers are ranked 15th and the Seminoles are ranked fifth. This marks just the eighth time that two top 20 teams have met in Death Valley. One of the other seven was the 1988 matchup between Clemson and Florida State. Clemson was ranked third and FSU 10th coming into that 24-21 Seminole victory. Two of the previous seven meetings of top 20 teams in Death Valley took place last season. Clemson won both of the contests, against Georgia Tech and against N.C. State.

Clemson has been involved in a game in which both teams have been ranked in the AP top 20 38 times. Clemson has a 19-19 record over the years in those games.

Here is a list of the contests in which two top 20 teams have met in Death Valley:

Wayne's World

by Annabelle Vaughan

Welcome to Wayne's World.

One word of caution before you enter. Wayne's World is not for the weak at heart. It is not always an easy place to be - it has often been a world of struggles and hardships in the past. But if you, like Wayne Simmons, are willing to conquer those, you might find the success and contentment that he has found. And who knows? You might just learn something.

To know Wayne Simmons is...well, almost impossible. One day the Tiger outside linebacker may be jovial and smiling, laughing boisterously with his teammates, cracking good-natured jokes about anyone who comes within his eyesight. The next day, you may encounter a somber Wayne, who seems to barely notice your presence.

So which persona is the real Wayne Simmons? How does he describe himself. "I'm just Wayne," he says matter-of-factly. "Most of the time, people just don't understand me, they can't figure me out. Sometimes, I'm friendly and I speak up. Other times, I'm concentrating and I don't want to be bothered. When I get into a deep concentration, I might project an angry look on my face, but I'm just thinking and concentrating."

"I think I am outgoing and caring, but I'm also ambitious. I have to strive. I can't settle for anything less than what I have decided I want for my life. I think sometimes people think I have a chip on my shoulder, but I have a lot of pressure on me. It's all personal pressure that I put on myself. Sometimes I just want to sit by myself and think about what I have to achieve."

Yes, Wayne's World is definitely an ambitious one, and it always has been. It began in a place called Ridgeland, South Carolina, a small town in a county that encompasses the wealthy shores of Hilton Head Island. Most of his young world consisted of just Wayne and his mother, Dorothy, who at times had to work three jobs to support her family. Rumor has it that it was in the backyard in Ridgeland that Wayne developed the strength that has helped make him the upper echelon athlete he is today, as he spent hour after hour chopping wood.

"I grew up by myself," Wayne remembers quietly. "I had my mother, but I was my own man when I was just a boy. My mother needed the stability of a strong man around the house and I made myself become that when I was only 12-years-old. I went to work when I was 12, washing dishes. I was in and out of restaurants and I was treated very badly. I found out that when you're on the bottom, you're going to be treated badly by those who consider themselves to be above you. I found out that the extra money wasn't worth it. I didn't like being treated like that, and I decided I was going to have to do something to change it. And how did I change it? By striving academically."

Wayne began to satisfy his academic ambitions at Hilton Head High School, where he spent a great deal of time with his friend, Tim Singleton, who is listed as Newberry College's starting quarterback heading into the 1992 season and holds many of that school's single season offensive records. "Nothing ever came a Hilton Head businessman who took a keen interest in Hilton Head High School football, and spent much of his spare time helping to tutor and advise many of the school's players. "I've been working with the school for about eight years," says Gardo. "I was first asked to tutor Wayne at the beginning of his sophomore year. His coach, Dan Utley, told me that Wayne was somebody who had as much potential as anyone he had ever coached and he needed some extra push to make sure he got into college. He was just a big, rawboned kid, the same height he is now, but only about 185 pounds. He was fast as lightning and stronger than anybody else on the team. But it was after talking to him that I realized that he was a young man who was a cut above the ordinary, he just didn't realize it yet. He had such a great vision for himself, and he knew he wanted to be somebody, but he didn't know who that somebody was or how to be it."

Wayne's home was a 30-minute drive from his high school campus, and Gardo discovered that most nights after practice, his new friend was hitch-hiking home, so he began to drive him. It was during these nightly rides that a unique relationship developed, one that Simmons and Gardo both treasure. "I guess because of those long rides, I got to know Wayne a lot better than most of the kids," Gardo continues. "I have four daughters all around Wayne's age, and I guess he became the son I didn't have."

One thing beside his enormous drive that impressed Gardo about Wayne was his ability to learn and to learn fast. "One thing that amazed me about Wayne was his memory. He has a much better memory than any of my kids (two of Gardo's daughters are currently students at the University of South Carolina, one is at Duke, and one is at the College of Charleston). You could give him a list of 25 complicated vocabulary words and he would know them almost immediately. That, combined with his unique vision, really has helped him in football too. He visualizes what is going on all over the field. He likes to know what everybody's job is and then what his job in relationship to everybody else is."

Wayne didn't let Gardo into his world easily. "He pursued me," says Wayne. "He had a difficult time communicating with me because I wouldn't open up to people. He kept nagging and pushing. He went through the good and easy for Wayne," says Singleton. "He always had to struggle to move up, but he has always had an intense drive, even when we were young. I remember when we were in ninth grade, I was in an upper level English class and Wayne was in a regular class. Well, he thought his teacher spent too much time talking about things that didn't have to do with English, so he requested to be moved. You don't find too many high school kids who are that eager to work and learn. He has always wanted to learn as much as he possibly can about as many things as he possibly can."

It was also at Hilton Head High that Tom Gardo first entered Wayne's World. Gardo is the bad with me. He didn't leave me when trouble struck. He was still there. He helped explain to me how to prepare for different situations that were going to come up in my life. He's definitely the only father figure I've ever had."

Wayne's World moved to upstate of South Carolina in 1988, where after red-shirting a year, he began to show the world just what one can do with strength (his 329-pound power clean mark is the best ever for a Clemson OLB), speed (he has clocked in at 4.5 in the 40-yard dash) and determination (no explanation needed). In only the second game of his college career, the Tigers' 34-23 victory over Florida State in Tallahassee, he posted six tackles, including a six-yard sack, and made what will go down in Clemson history as one of the greatest plays ever when he picked off a Seminole pass and streaked 73 yards for a touchdown. He was the leading freshman tackler on the team that year, and seemed destined for greatness on the football field.

The next two years brought solid performances for Wayne, as he moved onto the Clemson career lists for tackles for loss and sacks, yet the years were frustrating ones as he sought to find his niche under a new coaching staff. "Football was where I went to enjoy myself," says Wayne. "It was my relaxation from the books. I felt like I had found my spot during my freshman year, and when we changed coaches, it was a trauma for me. When football became a stress for me, I started faltering academically. I couldn't find ease anywhere. I didn't communicate with the coaches very well, so therefore, I might not have gotten the opportunities I would have if I had been more open. I was young and I didn't understand some of the changes and I didn't handle it very well."

Wayne wasn't accustomed to things not going his way in his world, as Singleton will hastily verify. "Wayne has so much drive, he can only see his goals sometimes. He doesn't mean to be hard to get along with, but it's either Wayne's way or no way. And, I have to admit, Wayne's way is usually a good way. If it's not, he's man enough to learn from his mistakes. He won't do it again. But there are no ifs, ands or buts, he does what he wants to do first."

After being a media darling during his freshman campaign, Wayne stopped doing all interviews for most of the next two years. Members of the press continued to ask for an interview from the enthusiastic, excited player they had interviewed as a rookie, but Wayne always politely refused. "I had a ball doing interviews my freshman year," he remembers, "but the next year, I wasn't happy and I knew that whatever I said would be harsh. I didn't want people to see me like that."

It only took a look at Wayne's stormy face to know that his world was not a happy place a year or so ago. Finally, Wayne's World was so dark he knew he had to do something about it, so he decided that instead of blaming others for his problems, he should look inside himself for the solution. He called upon the ability to visualize the whole picture that Tom Gardo had been so impressed with years before. "I think when I was younger and things didn't go my way, I would work harder thinking that my work habits would reverse the problem," says Wayne. "It's good to work hard, but my work habits weren't the problem, my communication was. I wasn't rebellious or anything, I just didn't want to open up to anybody about me."

"So I had to hit the problem head on. I had to break it down into parts and work on each individual part. It wasn't fixed overnight. I had to learn how to talk and be open with people. I had to put things in perspective and learn when and where to do things, when to open up and when not to talk. I had to learn to take the have left Clemson. I thought I needed a change. But I found out that what I needed was responsibility. I moved off campus this summer and I have had to learn how to pay bills and handle personal finances.

"I am extremely glad that I stayed. I fought hard for something and I can see the light at the end of the tunnel. I'm at that light right now. I have my degree so now I can focus most of my effort on my pursuits on the football field. I'm not just being publicized, I'm being recognized, because of what I have worked for. I've worked hard for it. I've matured. I've listened. I've learned."

But Wayne's World is still not what he wants it to be. "I still haven't reached my full potential. I think I'm a pretty good athlete, but I haven't put the whole picture together. Sometimes I use my athletic ability, which is my strength and speed, and sometimes I use my knowledge, my memory. Now I need to put it all together. I also want to be an inspiration to my teammates. I want them to be able to look at me and say, 'Hey, he's not giving up, we can't either.' I always strive in everything I do.

This year, I want to strive to be the complete football player."

And when the season is over, where will Wayne's World be next? With his athletic ability and determination, heading into the professional ranks seems to be a given. But oddly enough for someone in his shoes, the NFL is not Wayne's ultimate goal. "Wayne is very proud and he wants to make his mother proud," says Singleton. "He wants to make people see that he is a success in life, not just on the football field. That has been what has driven him since we were young. He loves football, but he has always known that football is a stepping stone to success in life."

Tom Gardo agrees. "Wayne really wants to be perceived as being a success in life, not just athletics. His goal is to be a total person, not just a total football player. He has been a real blessing to me. He has shown me a lot about life that I wouldn't ever have seen in my own day-to-day walk. I have grown to love him as a son and I am so very proud of him that he has been able to keep his vision despite the hardships he has faced."

So what is Wayne's World, according to Wayne himself? "My world is one of intensity, willingness, drive, and ambition," he says. "And those things are not something you learn. I think I inherited those things from my mother. She also has the biggest heart there is and I think I inherited that from her. She has always had a supreme goal and that was to be a provider for her family. Now my supreme goal is to go back and provide for her."

After three years of playing in the shadow of current pros John Johnson and Levon Kirkland, Simmons is ready to show his leadership qualities.

good things in my life and push them to the utmost, and wean the bad things out."

Now Wayne's World is a different place. He has accomplished what he calls his first goal: graduation. He earned his degree in financial management on August 8, while his mother, his brother and sister, Tom Gardo, and Tim Singleton looked on. "My number-one goal was to graduate and I think I pushed myself well to accomplish that," says Wayne. "If I had been able to graduate in May, I would

Dr. Max Lennon

Clemson University President Max Lennon's ambition is to be president of the nation's top technologically-oriented land grant university. And he doesn't plan to leave campus to achieve that goal. Because that's the vision Lennon has for Clemson: not to be "one of the best," but to be better at what it does than any other school.

To achieve the vision, Lennon has brought the business world's concepts of total quality management and strategic planning to the academic arena. He hopes these concepts will help reduce bureaucracy, increase involvement of students, faculty and staff in the management of the university, increase diversity, and create an atmosphere of a community of scholars.

"The vision statement that has emerged from the strategic planning process — to become the nation's leading technologically-oriented land-grant university — sets a challenging course for this institution's development: to become the best in our league," he has said.

It is this commitment to excellence that has enabled Lennon to lead Clemson to new heights during his six years as president. The Lennon presidency has seen the completion of the most successful campaign in the university's, and the state's, history; unprecedented growth in research, topping $90 million in annual expenditures last year; and an ongoing program of campus revitalization that balances the university's desire for technological excellence, cultural awareness, and historic preservation.

Lennon came to Clemson from Ohio State University, where he had been president for agriculture administration and executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. He also served on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and co-chaired the Governor's Commission on Agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri, and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon is a native of Columbus County, NC, and earned his bachelor's degree and doctorate from N.C. State University, where he began his teaching career.

The Clemson president has been active in a number of civic and professional groups, ranging from the local Rotary Club and Chamber of Commerce to the Board of Directors of EARTH in Costa Rica, which through education and investments aims to improve Third World agriculture.

Lennon has served as chairman of the Foreign Assistance Act Committee of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges (NASULGC), Chairman of the South Carolina Public Colleges and Universities Council of Presidents, and member of the boards of the S.C. Research Authority, Greenville Urban League, Farm Foundation, Duke Power, First Union, and Delta Woodside.

In the fall of 1987, Lennon was named to the board of trustees of the Farm Foundation, a national organization devoted to improving research and education to benefit rural areas. In 1988, he was appointed to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Policy Advisory Committee for Science and Education Research Grants Program by Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Lyng, and was a keynote speaker at the AgBiotech 88 international conference in Washington.

Lennon also was appointed to chair a committee of top administrators and federal officials from 11 universities across the nation to work with congress on legislation relating to foreign assistance and international development. The committee is a project of the National Association of State Universities and land-grant colleges.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon. This past year, they joined an elite group of people who can call themselves "Clemson Parents" when both children, Daniel Ray and Robin, received degrees from the university.

Dr. Max Lennon hopes to make Clemson the top technologically-oriented land-grant university in the nation.

Head Coach Ken Hatfield

When Clemson recorded its 1991 victory over Duke halfway around the world in Tokyo, Japan, Tiger head coach Ken Hatfield celebrated not just his first-ever Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title, but also his 100th victory as a head coach. Even though Hatfield has been in coaching only since 1979, he has placed his name among the top mentors in the nation.

Heading into the 1992 season, Hatfield is tied for third with Florida State's Bobby Bowden in wins among active coaches who have coached at a Division I school each of the last 10 years. He posts a 92-28-2 record in that time frame. And Hatfield's .762 winning percentage over the last 10 years ranks fourth among active coaches who have coached at Division I schools in each year of the last decade.

When Hatfield took over the Clemson program prior to the 1990 season, he was faced with the challenge of continuing the tradition of excellence set in the eighties (only Nebraska and Miami had fewer losses in that time frame than Clemson). Hatfield has more than met the challenge, posting a 19-4-1 mark for the Tigers in his first two seasons.

The victory over Illinois in the 1991 Hall of Fame Bowl made Hatfield the first Clemson coach to win 10 games in his first year and his .833 winning percentage is the best for a first-year Clemson coach since 1900 when John Heisman was 6-0. The 1990 season included six wins over teams with winning records. Only national champion Georgia Tech had more.

Hatfield was just the eighth coach in the last 13 years to take a team to a Top 10 AP final ranking in his first year with the program. He was the first ACC coach in history to take a team to a final AP top 10 ranking in his first year at a school.

But Hatfield's impressive debut at Clemson was no big surprise to those who have followed his career. He has enjoyed success throughout his involvement with the sport of football, as a player and coach.

As a player, he helped Arkansas face every challenge in 1964, when the Razorbacks had an 11-0 season and won the national title. As an assistant coach at Tennessee and Florida, he molded countless players into top-notch athletes who competed for Southeastern Conference titles, played in seven bowl games in a 10-year period, and ranked in the final top-20 five times. As a head coach, he took a dormant Air Force program to a number-13 national ranking and a pair of bowl wins. He continued to meet the challenges at Arkansas, his alma mater, guiding the Razorbacks to back-to-back Southwest Conference titles, something that had not been done at Arkansas since Hatfield was a player.

Hatfield has had five 10-win seasons in his career and has accomplished that task at three different schools. He is the only active coach and one of just two in the history of the game to have taken three different schools to a 10-win season.

Hatfield has taken his teams to 10 consecutive post-season bowls, including January 1 appearances five of the last six years. He is one of just four active coaches to take a team to a bowl each of the last 10 years. He is in noteworthy company as the other members of that exclusive club are Tom Osborne (Nebraska), LaVell Edwards (BYU), and Bobby Bowden (Florida State).

Hatfield has an overall record of 100-53-3 (.651), but he has won 78 percent of his games over the last eight seasons (84-23-2). At Arkansas, he posted a record of 55-17-1 over six seasons, a .760 winning percentage. That percentage is second best in Southwest Conference history as only Darrell Royal (Texas 1957-76) had a better percentage.

The native of Helena, Arkansas, played in two bowl games with the Razorbacks, coached in seven post-season games as an assistant and the 1992 Citrus Bowl marked the 10th in which he has been the head coach. Seven times he has coached a team to a top 20 final ranking in the AP poll, and he played on two other top 15 teams. The 9-2-1 ledger and #18 AP ranking in 1991 gave him seven top 20 finishes in the last 10 years.

Hatfield-coached clubs have excelled offensively and defensively, but they have been particularly successful in rushing offense and defense. Each of his last 10 teams has finished in the top 20 nationally in rushing offense, including seven top 10 finishes. This includes last year's team, which averaged 252 yards a game.

Two of his last four Arkansas teams finished in the top three in the country in turnover margin, including his 1988 team that was first in the nation (Clemson was second that same year). Defensively, his clubs have finished in the top 15 in the nation in rushing defense six of the last seven years. The Tigers were ranked first in the nation in total defense, second in rushing defense, and second in scoring defense at the end of the 1990 regular season. Clemson ranked first in the nation in rushing defense and fourth in total defense in the 1991 season.

Hatfield has coached in four major conferences and with independent schools, giving him a diverse background in the finer points of the game. It is one reason he was named the third best teaching coach in college football by Inside Sports Magazine in 1990.

Hatfield began his coaching career immediately after graduation. In the fall of 1965, he served as an assistant coach at Helena-West Helena High School in Arkansas. In 1966, he moved to West Point, where he served as freshman coach for two seasons.

After the two-year stint at Army, he served as an assistant coach at Tennessee for three years (1968-70). The Volunteers went to post-season bowls all three seasons (including two major bowls), won a conference title and ranked in the final top 20 of the AP poll all three seasons, including a number-four ranking in 1970.

In 1971, Hatfield began a seven-year stint at the University of Florida, spending four seasons as a defensive backfield coach and three as an offensive backfield mentor. Florida played in four bowl games during his career in Gainesville and two more Gator teams finished in the AP top 20, including the 1974 team that played Nebraska in the Sugar Bowl.

Clemson won the ACC in 1991, Ken Hatfield's second year at Clemson. He has guided Clemson to a pair of Top 20 seasons in his first two years.

Hatfield became offensive coordinator at the Air Force Academy under former New York Giants Head Coach Bill Parcells in 1978. A year later, Parcells was wooed to the Big Apple and Hatfield became the Falcons' head coach. The Air Force program had not had a winning season since 1973. But by his fourth season, Hatfield had an eight-game winner, led Air Force to its first-ever victory over Notre Dame, and had taken the Falcons to a post-season bowl for the first time since 1971.

In 1983, Hatfield was named national Coach-of-the-Year by the Football Coaches Association (Bobby Dodd Award) after leading Air Force to a 10-2 season that included wins over Notre Dame, Navy and a bowl victory over Mississippi. It was the Academy's first-ever win over Notre Dame in South Bend.

The next year, Hatfield succeeded Lou Holtz at Arkansas, where he would take his alma mater to 55 wins in six seasons, six bowl appearances and four final top-15 rankings. His 1985 club finished with a 10-2 mark and number-12 national ranking, the Razorbacks' first Top 20 finish since 1982. Four times the Razorbacks rallied from fourth quarter deficits to gain victory.

The 1986 campaign was another year of success with highlight victories over a nationally ranked Texas A&M club and the Razorbacks' first win in 20 years at Texas. Arkansas advanced to the Orange Bowl and finished 15th in the final AP poll.

Arkansas won the 1988 and 1989 Southwest Conference Championships and the Razorbacks never finished lower than second in his six years at Fayetteville. He was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Year in 1988 as he took the Razorbacks to the league title and a 10-0 start. Miami (FL) defeated Arkansas 18-16 in the Orange Bowl to stop the streak. Seven players off the 1988 club (all recruited by Hatfield) were drafted by the NFL, an Arkansas single draft record.

After the 1989 team's 10-2 ledger and second straight SWC championship, Hatfield was named Southwest Conference Coach-of-the-Decade by the Houston Post. Included in the victories was a triumph over a top-15 Houston team and Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware.

Hatfield has also had success off the field. A recent release by the CFA cited his 1989 Arkansas class for excellence in terms of graduation rate (over 80 percent), one of the top 10 figures in the nation.

Hatfield played for three years at Arkansas (1962-64) and he was a starter on the National Championship team of 1964. A defensive back by trade, he earned his fame as the nation's top punt returner in 1963 and 1964. He also finished as the runner-up as a sophomore and is still the only college football player to finish in the top two in the nation in punt returns three straight seasons.

His most memorable play took place against Texas in 1964 when he raced 81 yards with a punt return for a touchdown in Arkansas' thrilling 14-13 victory. It was the key victory in the Razorbacks' championship season. Altogether, Hatfield scored five TDs via punt returns in his career, including an Arkansas record 95-yard return against Tulsa in 1963.

An accounting major who earned his diploma in the spring of 1965, Hatfield was an Academic All-American in 1964 and was the recipient of the Swartz Award, presented annually to the top student-athlete at Arkansas. The 1964 All-SWC selection was inducted into the Arkansas Sports Hall of Fame in 1989.

YOUR UNUSED TICKETS COULD HELP ERIC TACKLE THE BOOKS.

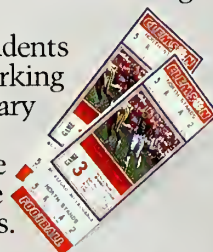

Eric attends a Homework Center – a place that helps him when Mom and Dad can't. And when he works especially hard, he can win wonderful prizes – like tickets to a Clemson home game that he might otherwise never get to see.

Hundreds of Homework Centers across the nation focus on keeping struggling students from becoming dropouts. In actuality, they're doing a lot more than that. Many hardworking students are bringing their grades up from F's to A's, and in one South Carolina elementary school expulsions declined from 38 to 4 after the centers opened.

Duke Power is proud to help support such an important and effective program. We invite you to help too. Simply donate football or basketball season tickets you're unable to use or purchase extra tickets to contribute to the Homework Centers for use as prizes. Send them at least two weeks before game day to: John Geer, Duke Power Company, P.O. Box 1745, Clemson, SC 29633.

If you do, you'll be helping students like Eric tackle the books today so that tomorrow they can tackle the world.

Clemson Coaches

The 1991-92 Clemson all-around sports program finished another successful year, as 13 of the 18 programs ranked in the top 25 of their respective final sports. Included in that 13 were 10 programs that were ranked in the top 20, tying the Clemson record for top 20 teams in an academic year. The highest ranked teams were the men's indoor track team (second) and baseball squad (seventh). The men's all-around sports program finished the year ranked 25th nationally.

Clemson teams laid claim to three ACC Championships last year as the football team won its first championship since 1988. The women's indoor track team won the ACC Indoor Track Meet giving the team its first ever ACC indoor championship. The men's track team also won the ACC indoor title for the fourth straight year. Clemson had 64 All-ACC selections and 27 All-Americans, tying the all-time record for All-America selections in a single academic year.

Men's spring sports and women's sports had an outstanding year. All four of Clemson's men's spring sports teams finished in the top 20 of their respective sports, the first time since 1987-88 that all four spring teams ranked in the final top 20. Baseball finished seventh, golf and men's track finished 12th, while the men's tennis team finished 20th. Five of Clemson's seven women's teams finished in the top 25. The women's outdoor track team finished 17th, the women's basketball team was 19th, the women's swimming team was 20th, the women's indoor track team was 22nd, and the women's tennis team was 23rd.

Clemson also excelled in the classroom during the 1991-92 campaign. Clemson student-athletes had a record semester in the spring, when 109 competitors made a 3.0 or better. Former football player Bruce Bratton and women's swimmer Liz Dolan won two of the highest academic awards distributed by the ACC. The Bob James Award was given to Bratton, while Dolan was presented with the Marie James Award. These scholarship awards are given to the top student-athletes, regardless of sport in the ACC.

Clemson had one National Coach-of-the-Year and two coaches were named the best in the ACC. Bob Pollock received both National Coach-of-the-Year and ACC Coach-of-the-Year honors after leading the track team to its best finish ever at the NCAA indoor meet. Wayne Coffman, women's indoor track coach, was named the ACC and District III Coach-of-the-Year.

The Atlantic Coast Conference

*Three members of the ACC rank among the top seven schools in the history of college football in bowl game winning percentage (given a minimum of 15 bowl games). Georgia Tech is first with a 17-8 record, for 68 percent, while Clemson is sixth at 11-7, a 61.1 percent mark. Florida State, who will compete for the ACC crown for the first time in 1992, is seventh with an 11-7-2 record, good enough for 60 percent. *ACC football attracted a league record 2,519,127 fans to its games last season. Over a 55-game schedule of home contests, that is an average of 45,802 per game. The previous records of 2,068,558 total fans and an average of 43,095, were established in 1985.

*Six of the nine ACC schools have been listed in various top 35 rankings of pre-season polls for the 1992 season.

*The 1991 season marked the second straight year that the ACC placed five teams in postseason bowls. The ACC has had 14 bowl invitations over the last three seasons, a record for any three-year stretch in league history.

*Only four coaches in the nation have taken a team to a postseason bowl game each of the last 10 years. Two of them, Ken Hatfield of Clemson and Bobby Bowden of Florida State, coach in the ACC.

*The ACC is second only to the Pac 10 in terms of bowl game winning percentage over the years. The ACC members have a combined mark of 64-56-5 for a .532 figure, while the Pac 10 is 73-58-6 for a .555 mark.

*Last year, 27 different ACC players made honorable mention All-American or better. This includes five players from Clemson, Rob Bodine, Ed McDaniel, Jeb Flesch, Levon Kirkland and Nelson Welch.

*Nine ACC players were chosen by at least one first-team All-America squad. Four of the nine players were from Clemson. This was the most first-team All-America players from Clemson in the school's history.

*Clemson and Florida State both rank among the top three in the nation in winning percentage over the last five years. Since 1987, Florida State is second only to Miami, while Clemson is third.

*The ACC had the second best non-conference winning percentage in the nation last year with a 15-9-1 record, a 62 percent mark. In 1990 the ACC ranked first, winning 25 of 32 games.

*Six of the nine ACC teams had winning records in 1991, tying a league mark for a single season.

*The ACC could be termed a coach's league. Five of the nine league coaches have 100 career wins or more entering the 1992 season. Those five coaches are Bobby Bowden of Florida State (206), Bill Dooley of Wake Forest (154), George Welsh of Virginia (121), Dick Sheridan of N.C. State (112) and Ken Hatfield of Clemson (100).

*Bowden, Sheridan and Hatfield are all among the top 15 winningest active coaches on a percentage basis. The ACC and the SEC are the only two conferences with three coaches ranked among the top 15 winningest active coaches.

*The ACC was the only conference in the nation that featured five different teams that won at least eight games in 1991. Florida State, Clemson, N.C. State, Georgia Tech and Virginia all hit the eight-win mark. The ACC was also the only conference in which at least half of its teams won at least eight games. The Pac-10 and the SEC each had four teams with at least eight wins.

*In 1991, the ACC had five teams ranked in the top 35 in the nation in total defense, more teams in the top 35 than any other conference in the nation. Clemson led the way with a fourth-place finish and a figure of 263.2 yards per game. The league also had five members among the top 30 teams in the nation in scoring defense.

*The ACC also has a reputation for outstanding field goal kickers. In 1991, six of the top 44 field goal kickers in the country were from the ACC. Clemson's Nelson Welch led the way with an average of 1.55 per game, good enough for fourth in the nation. Only five kickers booted five field goals in a game last year across the country. Two of the five, Clemson's Nelson Welch, and Mike Green of Wake Forest, played in the ACC.

*The ACC was also the top conference in the nation for nationally ranked punt returners in 1991. Seven of the top 45 punt returners in the nation were from the ACC. Clemson's Darnell Stephens led the conference and finished eighth in the nation.

IPTAY

Traditions are something that don't happen overnight, they evolve over a number of years. One tradition at Clemson that is going strong and heading into its 58th year is IPTAY. The IPTAY Scholarship Foundation, is known throughout the country for its faithful and generous contributions by its supporters. A recent USA Today article calls IPTAY the best-known organization of its kind in the nation. The article noted that at a time when college athletic costs are rising IPTAY continues to lead the way in supporting athletic scholarships at Clemson. IPTAY plays a major role in insuring that all 18 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships allowed by the NCAA.

Thanks in part to IPTAY's contributions the 1991-1992 academic year proved to be one of the most successful ever for Clemson athletics. Thirteen of the 18 athletic teams at Clemson finished the year ranked in the top 25 in their respective sports. Ten of those teams were ranked in the top 20, which ties for the most top 20 teams at Clemson in an academic year.

An even more impressive fact was that Clemson had 27 All-Americans in 1991-1992, tying the record that was set during that 1990-1991 academic year. Clemson also had 64 first-team All-ACC selections, the third most in Clemson history for an academic year.

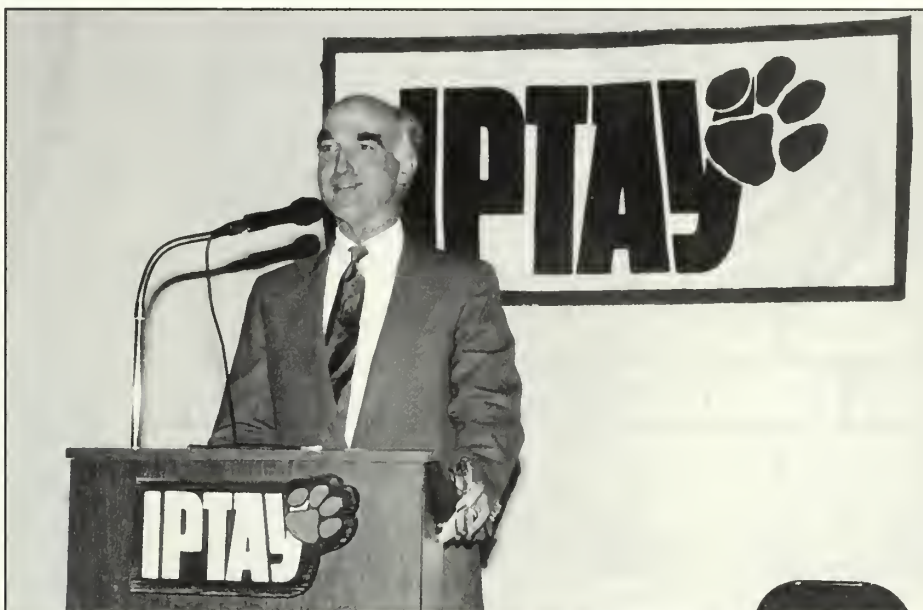

Over the last five years, 16 of Clemson's 18 teams have been ranked in the top 25 in the country at one time or another. During this time the Clemson football, women's cross country, women's basketball and golf teams have been in the top 25 all five years, while the men's indoor track, baseball, women's track and women's swimming teams have had four top 20 seasons.

The success of the Clemson athletic program comes during a time when the integrity and accountability of the academic progress of student-athletes are receiving national attention. IPTAY has been a large part of that success by being committed to the student-athlete.

IPTAY is recognized as one of the oldest, largest and most successful athletic fundraising organizations in America. IPTAY was the first athletic fundraising organization in the country to top the two, three, four, and five-million dollar marks in annual donations. It has had a record-breaking total for 28 straight years.

In 1934, Dr. Rupert Fike founded IPTAY with a very simple purpose in mind: IPTAY provides funds for athletic scholarships. Since 1934 IPTAY has certainly met Fike's goal, providing scholarships for over 5,000 student-athletes, trainers, and managers.

IPTAY currently provides the funds for tutorial programs staffed by trained academic advisors, assisted by graduate and undergraduate students. This support is intended to insure that all student-athletes are given the opportunity to earn their degree while participating in athletics.

Allison Dalton is the leader of America's top athletic scholarship foundation.

IPTAY donors have also played an intricate role in the "Campaign for Clemson", a long range fund-raising project of the University. The University's original goal of 62 million dollars was surpassed with the next goal of 78 million also being surpassed in the campaign that ended on June 30, 1992. IPTAY provided three million dollars with ongoing opportunities for donors to be part of the Vickery Hall Academic Learning Center.

Vickery Hall, located on East Campus is a 27,000 square foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. The building contains various-sized study and tutoring rooms used for individual study as well as small group instruction. Computer facilities, an office/reception area for the advising staff and an auditorium, also are contained in Vickery Hall.

The generous support of 18,200 loyal donors to IPTAY has allowed the organization to go beyond the funding of athletic scholarships by providing the financial basis for many of the unparalleled athletic facilities at Clemson.

Since 1978, IPTAY has provided the funding for $34 million of capital improvements in the area of athletics. These improvements include the expansion of the football stadium, the newly renovated baseball facility (Tiger Field), the new outdoor track, the indoor tennis facility, the soccer stadium, the weight room, the new golf practice area, a new cross country course, and the IPTAY/Ticket office facility.

IPTAY is also proud to provide the funding for Tiger Band. Each year IPTAY establishes financial support for travel, uniforms and equipment for this integral part of the Clemson athletic program.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts that are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues.

The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson providing $1.8 million in funds, currently benefitting more than 50 students. IPTAY's support extends to all of the student body.

The tremendous support of IPTAY is due, in large part, to the organizational makeup that allows donors to be as close to IPTAY as they are to their local IPTAY leadership. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties has an IPTAY County chairman, and every county is allotted an IPTAY representative for every 35 donors.

One important way IPTAY keeps in touch with its membership is the annual Clemson Club meeting held in April and May of each year. These meetings, which feature different coaches and administrators, are just one of the ways of making the local IPTAY members feel close to Clemson.

Clemson University will continue to be recognized and respected on the national level athletically and academically with the full support of IPTAY. IPTAY will continue to be successful because a loyal commitment to Clemson University is a way of life in the hearts of Clemson alumni and friends.

Academic All-Americans

Charlie Bussey, Back, 1956: Clemson quarterback 1954-56 ... captain of the 1956 team that won the ACC title and played Colorado in the 1957 Orange Bowl ... Academic All-ACC in 1955 and 1956...third-team Academic All-

America choice in 1956...led the Tigers in passing, punting and interceptions in 1956, the last Tiger to pull off that all-around triple threat performance ...entered Air Force where he served as an instructor-pilot for over eight years...lives in Greenville, SC, where he oversees manufacturing plants.

Harvey White, Back, 1957: Second-team Academic All-American as a sophomore... Academic All-ACC in 1957 and 1958...led the team in total offense during his sophomore and junior years...paced the club in passing for three straight seasons... All-ACC as a sophomore, he quarterbacked Clemson for three straight years and to three straight bowl games...co-captain for the 1959 team...had a 154 passing efficiency in 1957, second highest single season figure in Clemson history...18th in the nation in total offense in 1957 with 1038 yards...still ranks fifth in Clemson history in passing efficiency...first Clemson quarterback to complete over 50 percent of his passes for a career...still in top five in Clemson history in touchdown passes.

Lou Cordileone, Tackle, 1959: Named to first-team All-American, Academic All-American and Academic All-ACC in 1959...only Clemson player to be chosen first-team Academic and on-field All-American in the same year...started on two ACC Championship teams that were nationally ranked 11th and 12th in 1958 and 1959, respectively...played in two 1959 bowl games, the Sugar Bowl and the Bluebonnet Bowl...right fielder in the College World Series for Clemson baseball team in 1959... played with the New York Giants (football) in 1960, he was a first-round draft choice.

Don Kelley, End, 1971: Three-time Academic All-ACC selection...first-team Academic All-American in 1971... holds single game return yardage record for Clemson and the ACC with 223 yards against Maryland in 1970...had a single game record 167 yards on punt returns in that game...his 389 punt return yards in 1970 ranks as the second best for a single season...sixth in the nation in punt returns in 1970...played defensive back for two years, then switched to flanker for his senior year...his mother was 1970 IPTAY Mother-of-the-Year...Don is now a dentist in Greenville, SC.

Ben Anderson, Defensive Back, 1971: Second-team Academic All-American...President of Tiger Brotherhood while at Clemson... earned 1972-73 NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship award...won the Jim Weaver Award as the outstanding student-athlete in the ACC for the 1972-73 academic year...recipient of the Frank Howard Award for bringing honor to Clemson University in 1973...three-time academic All-ACC on the gridiron, he made the team in 1970, 1971 and 1972...attended South Carolina Law School...lives in Clemson and is the General Counsel for Clemson University.

Steve Fuller, Quarterback, 1977-78: First-team Academic All-American as a senior, second-team in his junior year...made Dean's list six consecutive semesters at Clemson... awarded NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship and Jim Weaver Postgraduate Scholarship from the ACC...honored in 1978 as one of 11 scholar athletes by the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame...NCAA Top Five Award winner, given annually to the top five student athletes in the nation, regardless of sport...graduated with a 3.93 in Pre-Law (History)...just the second Clemson athlete in history to have his number (four) retired...played in East-West Shrine Bowl and Senior Bowl in 1979...played in the NFL for eight years, including a stint with the

Mike Eppley, Quarterback, 1983: 1990 Clemson Hall of Fame inductee...honorable mention All-American in 1984...Academic All-ACC in football and basketball three times each during his celebrated career... participated in 1984 Blue-Gray game...threw for 28 career touchdown passes, breaking Bobby Gage's record...recipient of the Frank Howard Award in 1983-84 academic year and the Clemson IPTAY Athlete-of-the-Year the same season...third in the nation in passing efficiency in 1983, the highest finish ever by a Clemson quarterback...only Clemson QB to rank in the Top 25 in passing efficiency twice...fourth-team Academic All-American in 1984, he was first-team All-ACC by AP for his on-field performance...doubled as basketball player for four years...earned 268 assists, seventh best all-time finish in Clemson history on the hardwood, when he graduated...also earned his master's degree from Clemson...heating and air conditioning vice president in Charlotte, NC.

Bruce Bratton, Offensive Tackle, 1991: First-team College Football Association Academic All-American for 1991 and a second-team All-ACC choice by AP/ACSWA at offensive tackle ...named to the Academic All-ACC football team for three straight years, he was just the sixth player in Clemson history to do so...received his degree in industrial engineering in May of 1991, he was a graduate student during his last year of competition...winner of the Bob James Postgraduate scholarship, the ACC's top academic honor...a senior leader of the Tiger offensive line that led the team to the ACC regular season title in total offense and rushing offense in 1991...in on 1,899 snaps in his Clemson career...a prime reason Clemson ranked in the top 20 in the nation in rushing each of the last three seasons...graded 75 or better in six of the last seven games of 1990...a three-year starter for the Tigers.

Jim Phillips

By Tim Bourret

Jim Phillips is in his silver anniversary season as the voice of the Clemson Tigers. When you examine the chain of events that led to his selection to that position back in 1968, it is hard to believe he is the dean of ACC announcers and will soon become one of the few non-Clemson alumni to be selected to the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame.

"If I applied for this job today I wouldn't get it," said Phillips, a native of Ohio who never set foot in the state of South Carolina before he interviewed for the position. "I answered a blind ad in a broadcasting magazine. When I sent in my resume I could not find a tape of a football game. I had described high school games in Ohio and Kent State football, but I had not saved any tapes. I sent in a tape of a high school basketball game.

"I am told that when Coach (Frank) Howard listened to my tape he said, 'Well, he does a good basketball game, but does he know a damn about football?'" Apparently, Phillips sold the committee during his interview because he was the man behind the mike when the Tigers opened the 1968 season.

The job was a combined position as Sports Director of WFBC Radio, Sports Director of WFBC TV and radio play-by-play of Clemson football and basketball. It was equally surprising that he was extended an offer from the television angle because he did not have any film (no videotape back then) of one of his television broadcasts.

"I was really surprised when I got the job," said Phillips. "I didn't know that much about Clemson in addition to not having many tapes. The only Frank Howard I knew played baseball for the Washington Senators. But, I was certainly pleased they chose me.

"My first year I brought a little camera with me because I was going to be doing games in comparatively large stadiums. The biggest crowd I had ever broadcast in front of was in Massillon, OH for a high school football game.

"My first Tiger game was at Wake Forest in 1968. I can still remember how excited I was at Groves Stadium that day. It was a 20-20 tie and the first game ever played in that stadium. I remember how impressive the press facilities were. I had never worked in anything so clean and spacious.

"If I looked at the play-by-play of that game today I would think it was a pretty boring game. But, at the time, it seemed like one of the most exciting games in college football history."

Phillips began his radio career in January of 1953. As a student at Ashland College, a speech professor told him, "it is time for you to shape up." Phillips, with the help of the professor, got an operator job at WATG in Ashland.

"I wasn't on the air that much in that first job, we had mostly network stuff on the air. But I was fascinated by the entire operation," recalled Phillips. He moved on to WFAH in Alliance, OH in 1961, where he broadcast high school football and basketball and small college sports. In 1966 he became the voice of Kent State football, and that experience led him to Tigertown.

"I remember when they first hired Jim Phillips at Clemson in 1968," said Woody Durham, who was working on the ACC Game-of-the-Week at the time and has been the Voice of North Carolina sports since 1971. "Clemson had always had announcers from the South. I said to myself a guy from Ohio won't be at Clemson very long.

"Boy, was I wrong and I certainly am glad of that. Not only is Jim Phillips a good broadcaster, he is a good friend. He is a credit to our profession and I am looking forward to his induction into the Clemson Hall of Fame." Clemson plays North Carolina on the day Phillips will be added to the Hall of Fame.

One of the reasons Phillips is so respected is that he brings credibility to his broadcasts. He has never been known as a homer and never uses 'we or they' in his broadcasts. "You need to be enthusiastic, but you must give the opponent their due," said Phillips. "If you are getting annihilated, you're getting annihilated. You should always tell it like it is because you lose credibility if you don't. Everyone in the business I have admired over the years has used that approach."

Bob Harris, the voice of the Duke Blue Devils is an admirer of Phillips and his straight shooter approach is one of the reasons. "There is not a pretentious bone in his body," said Harris, voice of the Duke Blue Devils the last 18 years. "We need more people in the business like him. He calls it like it is, he is a true professional, someone with credibility, someone you respect.

"I first met Jim at the Kemper Open in Charlotte in 1969 or 1970. He gave me some good advice at that time. I was with a 250-watt station and he took the time to talk to me about the industry."

Phillips is always willing to help someone just breaking into the business because he was in that position many years ago.

"When I started out broadcasting football games I was very green to say the least," said Mike Eppley, Phillips's cohort on the Clemson football broadcasts. "Jim made it very easy for me. He really knows a great deal about football, anyone listening to one of his broadcasts knows that. It is a pleasure to work with him.

"Jim Phillips has been doing Clemson football for so long it would be hard to imagine anyone else doing the job that he does. He certainly deserves the honor of joining the Clemson Hall of Fame."

Phillips will receive that Hall of Fame Award on November 7, the day he describes the Clemson-North Carolina contest, the 287th game of his Clemson football career (he also has broadcast 689 Clemson basketball games over the last 24 years). Almost half of the people who listen to the Tigers every Saturday have never heard anyone else broadcast a Clemson football game. In his 24 previous years he has never missed a regular season broadcast. He missed a couple of bowl games when other networks had the rights to the game. He missed the 1989 Citrus Bowl victory over Oklahoma due to a family death.

This has been quite a year for Phillips. In addition to the Hall of Fame honor, he was named Master Broadcaster of South Carolina, an honor presented by the South Carolina Broadcaster's Association. It is an award that is not given every year, in fact it had been awarded just twice prior to this year. He was cited for his outstanding service to broadcasting in the state of South Carolina.

Phillips is best known across the state for his Clemson work, but he also served WFBC TV (now WYFF) for 12 years as its sports director (1968-80), has been sports director for 25 years at WFBC Radio providing commentary on various programs during this time, and was the voice of the Greenville Braves of the AA Southern League for that franchise's first four years of existence. He also provides play-by-play of Clemson baseball games.

If the truth be known, baseball is actually his favorite sport. "We didn't have pro basketball and the NFL was just getting going when I was growing up in Ohio. I followed the Cleveland Indians at that time and that was the sport we played when I was growing up. We played it all day in the sandlots, so baseball was actually my first love."

While baseball might be his first love, South Carolina might be his second. Although he was born in Ohio and has fond memories of life in the Buckeye state, he made it clear during his Master Broadcaster Award acceptance speech in August, that South Carolina in general and Clemson in particular, are now important aspects of his life.

"I have been here 25 years now and consider myself a South Carolinian. I live here now, I make my home here and I will die here. And, I hope I will be broadcasting Clemson sports right up until my final days."

Phillips became voice of the Tigers even though he didn't submit an audio tape of a football broadcast with his resume.

Ashley Sheppard

by Annabelle Vaughan

Ashley Sheppard is a mother's worst nightmare.

Or at least, he is his mother's worst nightmare.

No, it isn't because he is rebellious. In fact, he is very mild mannered and soft spoken when he isn't wearing shoulder pads and a helmet. It isn't because he is lazy. He is scheduled to graduate after four years next May or at the end of the summer session of 1993, and you need only a glance to tell that he is no slouch in the weightroom. And no, it's not because he isn't successful. Even a brief conversation with the Tiger senior lets you know that he is destined to succeed.

In fact, Ashley Sheppard would seem to be a mother's dream-come-true. And six days of the week, he probably is. But on Autumn Saturday's, when thousands of fans flock to see Sheppard and his teammates play football, Mary Sheppard is nowhere to be seen. Mrs. Sheppard has never seen her son play football in person, even though he has been playing since eighth grade. In fact, if it hadn't been for a touch of sneakiness in her otherwise well-behaved son, Clemson's 6-4, 254-pound outside linebacker might never have become a football player.

"I wanted to play football when I was in the seventh grade," Sheppard remembers with a smile. "But my mom didn't want me to play because she was afraid I was going to get hurt even though I was bigger than everybody else. I told her, 'Mom, I think I'm pretty big and I can handle it,' but she said no. So I didn't play my seventh grade year. I had to settle for playing basketball and baseball.

"My eighth grade year, she wasn't going to let me play again, but I wanted to play so much...so I had to sneak and do it. Once you started with a team, you couldn't quit or they wouldn't let you advance to the next level or play the other sports. So I started practicing and after a while, I said, 'Mom, I want to play football this year,' and she said, 'I'm sorry, but I'm afraid you're going to get hurt.' So I told her it was too late, I had already started. It was very sneaky, but if I hadn't done it that way, I don't know if I ever would have gotten to play.

"She has never seen me play because she's afraid I'm going to get hurt. She has never come to a game - never in high school, never in college. She can't stand it. I think she tries to watch it on television, but she can't watch certain things."

Maybe if everyone watched Ashley Sheppard play football through a mother's lication heading into 1991 - a reputation that is well deserved as Sheppard has already set the Clemson career record for special teams tackles with 43 after only three years.

In fact, one of Sheppard's favorite memories of his football career happened on special teams during his freshman year. It was the kind of play that Mary Sheppard probably would have bad dreams about, had she seen it. "It was against N.C. State, and I just stopped a return cold," Sheppard remembers. "I zoomed in on him and it just so happened that the place where I was going and the place where he was going were the same. As soon as he took off, I was there and we hit pretty hard. I was so excited I just went crazy."

That play got the attention of a couple of other Tiger outside linebackers who had already made their presence known at Clemson. All-American and second-round draft pick Levon Kirkland, who Sheppard played behind as a freshman and sophomore and rotated with as a junior said, "When I first saw Ashley, I thought, 'he's huge!' I knew I'd better get to be his friend. He didn't even hit that guy from N.C. State straight up. He just kinda knicked him. If he had hit him head on, that guy would still be in the hospital today. Have you ever seen that wrestler, the Ultimate Warrior? He just runs into the ring and 'POW!' That's Ashley for you."

The Greenville, NC, native's other favorite football memory came in the victory against Georgia in 1990. For Sheppard, it is the stuff that dreams are made of. And for his mother? Well, maybe not coming to watch her son play is a wise choice. "They sent the fullback one way and pulled a guard and a tackle. I split both of them and the tailback was right there. I hit him so hard that my helmet came off and my mouthpiece was still in my mouth. I broke my mouthpiece. I was so excited, I didn't feel anything. I was hugging everybody and yelling. I get excited just thinking about it."

But Sheppard gets excited just thinking about football, period. "It's something I wait for all year," he says. "I wish it would never eyes, they could see her point. When he was a freshman, he was promptly nicknamed the "missile" by his impressed teammates. He was named to the Sporting News freshman honor roll in 1989, when he was a demon on special teams, tying for third on the team in special teams' tackles with 12, 11 of which were first hits or solo stops. Heading into his sophomore year, he was ranked as one of the top-10 special teams players in the nation by Sporting News and was the nation's number-one special teams player according to that pub-

Sheppard's mother has yet to see him play. She doesn't know what she is missing.

end. I wish there was no offseason and I could play it year round. Normally, I'm pretty quiet and laid back. I like being by myself, just me and my dog (a rottweiler named General Patton). But then I put in a tape of a football game, either one of our games or any football game, and it gets my blood boiling. It doesn't matter who's playing, football gets me pumped."

Former Tiger OLB John Johnson, now a San Francisco 49er, said this about Sheppard in 1990. "Out of all of us, Shep probably enjoys the game the most. He probably enjoys it more than anybody who ever played at Clemson University. Just to watch Shep get in there and do his thing, gets you fired up. I remember the N.C. State game, when Ashley went down and hit that guy on a return, he sat there for about 20 seconds by himself tearing the field up. If it was possible, I think Shep would give every one of the 80,000 fans a hug after the game. It means a lot to Shep just to walk out there in front of those people and play."

Sheppard laughs at his former teammate's words. "I think I do love it more than most people. I have an intense love for the game. In high school, I couldn't wait for Friday night. It was as exciting for me in high school as I think it is for some people in college. Now I can't wait for Saturdays and I really can't wait for the season to begin every year. I don't think about statistics and winning awards and getting on television. I just can't wait to get out there and play football."

Although Sheppard may not think about statistics, his offerings in that category have been impressive. He has never missed a game during his Clemson career and is therefore a veteran of 36 games. He may be one of the top all-around performers on the squad, as he ranked eighth on the 1991 squad in total tackles with 52, fifth in quarterback pressures with seven and had five stops for loss including three sacks. He also batted down four opponent's passes and caused a fumble. In 1990, he played a vital role in Clemson winning the national defense title with 10 tackles for loss and four sacks.

But what makes Sheppard unique, and what would make his mother cringe if she were around to see it, is how he has posted those statistics. "I guess I'm just reckless," he says. "Sometimes when I hit somebody, I hurt myself. Sometimes I hit someone so hard I get dizzy or I see stars. But it's just reaction. I don't see the guy I'm going to tackle and say that I'm going to hit him hard. It's like a cheetah on a gazelle. Once I focus and I get going, my instinct is telling me to get him."

Looking at Sheppard, it would seem like he was created to play football. Although at 6-4, he is not the tallest player on the field, he seems to tower over his opponents. His arms appear long enough to reach around a guard and a tackle with little effort, even though they are as thick as tree trunks. And when he is off and running, it is hard to believe that he weighs in at 254 pounds. He bench presses 410 pounds, and power cleans 314 pounds. Last year, his teammates voted him the Lifter-of-the-Year for his prowess and hard work in the strength training room.

With physical attributes like that, it would seem that playing football has always come easy to Sheppard. But his size and strength certainly didn't impress his mother enough to allow him to play football in the eighth grade, and it also didn't help much when it came time to posting the correct academic requirements to gain admission to college.

"In high school, I always did enough to get by," Sheppard remembers, "and that came back to haunt me." Sheppard spent his first year out of high school at Fork Union Military Academy. "That was a big trial for me," he says somberly. "I had to make my grades. I knew I could do it, but there was always a tiny doubt in the back of my mind. I knew I had to keep working hard every single day I was there. By going to Fork Union, I developed better study habits and learned that the academics had to come first. It was hard, but I was determined to play football. Maybe that's why I love it so much now, because I had to work so hard to get here."

And once Sheppard got to Clemson his size and strength didn't always mean an easy road either. "I have all the physical attributes. The only problem I have had was going out and playing the whole game. I would be tired. I don't think I was really out of shape, but I would get so excited emotionally that it would burn so much out of me. I have had to learn to maintain that level of excitement and stay out there physically. This season will be an even greater challenge. We don't have the luxury of as much experienced depth early in the season. I'm in better shape than I've ever been in. I feel great. I've been running and lifting weights all summer. I know that at the beginning of the season, Wayne (Simmons) and I are going to have to suck it up and still go, even if we are tired. We aren't going to have the option to come out as often as we have in the past. I feel like physically and mentally I could play a whole game."

And his size and strength will also not be enough for Sheppard to accomplish the goals he has set for this year. "My first objective is to graduate," he says. "I will graduate next May or after first session of summer school with a degree in business management. Then I want a shot in the pros. The thought never occurred to me that I might have a shot until I got to college and college has gone by so fast. There are a lot of guys with strength and size, but only a few can make it to the pros.

"I have to be an impact player. I have to control a game. I need to make big plays. When its time for a big play, I want to be there. If we're down, I want to be the one to put it on the line and make the key sacks. I remember players like Derrick Thomas and Cornelius Bennett, and that's the way they were in college. I have to make the sacks and bat down the passes and get in the quarterback's face and stop the returns...I have to be able to do it all and do it all well."

Sheppard is confident that he will indeed be able to accomplish all of his goals if he keeps the work ethic that he has exhibited during his entire Clemson career. But he has one more goal that he is not quite so sure he can accomplish. "My mother says she is coming to a game this year, but I'll believe it when I see it! She might really have bad dreams once she sees me play!"

Jeep Grand Cherokee Limited

Eagle Vision TSi

Out of respect for the Clemson football team, please wait until after the game to run to your Jeep® and Eagle dealer.

We realize that it could be difficult to sit through an entire game knowing that you could be driving one of these tempting new vehicles. Jeep Grand Cherokee's optional new 220 horsepower V8 engine is enough to send even the most die-hard fan to one of the exits. And as if that weren't enough, there's the totally new Eagle Vision TSi with a 214 horsepower engine and dual air bags standard. So please, be polite, look at the pictures, root for the home team and, if you must, leave at halftime. Your local dealer will have the game on the radio.

Football at Clemson in 1762?

By Lee Thomas

Did you know that Bobby Bowden's Florida State Seminoles weren't the first "Indians" to play a ballgame at Clemson? A tribe from Newberry came up way back in September of 1929, but those "Indians" weren't the first ones here either. In fact, the history of Indian ballgames at Clemson goes much further back than 1929.

If you arrive at Death Valley early Saturday, climb high into the stadium and look westward over the playing surface of Frank Howard Field. Beyond Jervey you will see the last remnant of what was once the Seneca River. The old stream bed, in some places still shaded by large oaks, winds behind the athletic offices and the baseball field, curves around Lot 4, bisecting it and the Tigers' manicured practice area, then cuts away toward the waters of Hartwell Reservoir. The entire stretch of serpentine riverbed lies between two massive earth dikes that were erected by the Corps of Engineers to keep the lake from flooding much of the Clemson campus.

And what does this have to do with Indians playing ball? Well, archaeologists tell us that the Carolina Piedmont around Clemson was long the home of native Americans. Stone artifacts spanning a 10,000-year period have been found scattered over much of the surrounding countryside. In more recent times, several Cherokee settlements were located along the river, and it was the Indians, using slash and burn methods, who first cleared the rich alluvial bottomlands for agriculture. In the historic period, the nearest known Indian settlement was known as Seneca.

Records indicate that this palisaded town was built soon after the Cherokee War of 1760-61, along both sides of the river opposite the present Clemson campus. It was established by about 500 refugees from several nearby villages that had been burned by a British army in June of 1760.

At the advent of the American Revolution, the town reportedly became a haven for bands of Loyalists and Cherokee warriors who raided the frontier settlements of the backcountry. During the 1760-1776 period there is significant evidence that there were games, an early form of football and other sports, competed between the various divisions of warriors. There is strong evidence that suggest many of their athletic contests were competed very near the present site of Clemson's athletic complex.

Because the ball game was a very important aspect of Indian culture in the southeast, every town fielded a team. It was limited in size only by the number of young warriors who lived in the town, and since much prestige went to a successful player, most males sought a place on the team. Boys often began regular, severe training at the age of 8-10 years.

Games were played within the floodplain, where goalposts were erected at each end of the level field from 100 to 500 yards in length. These wood goalposts were set from 4-12 feet apart, then topped with a crossbar about 20 feet high. The games that were played each year were scheduled by the town's foremost war leader against a town that was of "a different fire." Usually the same two teams played each other for an entire season. When two towns were to meet for the first time, either could challenge, but only the loser could call for a rematch.

After a series of three or four games resulted in losses for one team, the opposing towns became of "the same fire" and future competition was avoided. Player equipment consisted of two hardwood sticks, each about 24-30 inches long, bent at one end into a small hoop and laced with rawhide strips to form a net or pouch. The ball was a spherical, hair-stuffed piece of buckskin that was always provided by the challengers.

To score, a player had to use his sticks to hurl the ball between the goalposts, or hit the poles with the ball. Each successful effort resulted in one point, with 12 points winning a game within the Cherokee system. The nearby Creek Indians played until a team reached 20 points. Their season ran from mid-summer until the weather became too cold to play, with many intra-squad practices culminating in an elaborate ritual prior to the "real" game, which was usually played around harvest time.

For seven days before the game, players were forbidden to eat rabbit (which might induce timidity), frog (whose bones were too brittle), sucker fish (which were too sluggish), any kind of hot food, or salt. Additionally, a warrior could not play if his wife were pregnant. On the eve of the game, the entire town participated in a dance (pep rally?) that began at dusk and lasted until dawn. During this time the players fasted. Four times they stopped at the river for a water purification ritual.

Around midday a last minute talk designed to incite the players was given by their "conjurer," and chants were offered by a cheerleader known as dalala, or woodpecker. The two teams then faced off in equal numbers while an elderly "ball witch" reminded them of the rules of the game before tossing the buckskin into the air between the opposing forces. Only the webbed sticks could be used to start the ball into play, so it often took several minutes of intense scrambling for possession to be established. At that time, a player could drop his sticks and run toward the goal while carrying the ball in his hands or mouth. Defenders could use any method to dislodge the ball, and injuries were frequent and severe.

During the game, which could range from as little as 30 minutes to seven or eight hours, the players were not allowed water. A sour drink made of green grapes, wild crabapples, and other crushed plants (prehistoric Gatorade?) was provided. While participants ran to and fro on the field, spectators placed bets, called anetsa by the Cherokee, and conjurers and their assistants played cane or tibia flutes in support of their respective teams. European observers described the music as a "hideous melancholy discord."

The main conjurer spent the game in a nearby but isolated place, where he was kept abreast of the action by an assistant, who had at his disposal seven appointed advisors to observe the game. After each score, the ball was returned to play at midfield. The players did not employ elaborate team strategies; instead, they exercised their individuality, even to the point of trying to cripple or disable the best man on the other team. When two warriors carried this too far, especially after play had moved to another area of the field, "drivers" would come out of the crowd and use long switches to force the battling players apart. Throughout play, good sportsmanship was demanded of all participants and it was considered unmanly to lose one's temper.

No doubt the Indian ballgame as it was played alongside the Seneca River between 1762 and 1776 contributed in many ways to American football, as well as to lacrosse, the Canadian national game. The many striking similarities are too obvious to deny.

So, the next time you are discussing Clemson football history, remember that the first Indians to play here weren't the Florida State Seminoles or the Newberry team of 1929; instead, they were probably the 1762 Cherokees from Seneca Town.

The Seminoles last came to Clemson in 1988, but Indian teams may have been playing football at Clemson since 1762.

Every high school in South Carolina comes out a winner when you buy an official South Carolina license tag designed especially for Clemson.

All tag proceeds support the Clemson Scholars program, which offers scholarships to the brightest high school students in South Carolina. Visit your Highway Department Field Service Office to purchase a tag, or contact the Clemson Alumni Association, 803/656-2345, for more information.

National Coach-of-the-Year

by Annabelle Vaughan

Barcelona, Spain
July 28, 1992

Coach Pollock:

My trip wouldn't have been complete if I forgot to thank you and Coach Block for all the hard work and belief you invested in me. This card is just a small token of my appreciation for you and your family being my family away from home.

*Thanks Again,
Anthony Knight*

Clemson head men's track coach Bob Pollock has a lot to be proud of. In only four years at the helm of the Clemson program, he has earned eight ACC Championship trophies, eight conference Coach-of-the-Year honors and the 1992 National Indoor Coach-of-the-Year award. But none of the trophies, none of the honors, none of the glory has meant as much to Pollock as the pair of postcards he received from two of the Clemson athletes competing in this summer's Olympic Games in Barcelona, because to Pollock, winning doesn't have anything to do with where his athletes cross the finish line, it's how they run the race of life.

"Our coaching philosophy is that we want to take more of an interest in our athletes than just how they compete on the track," says the 42-year old Pollock. "We want to know about our athletes' lives, and the time they spend in training and competition is just a small part of their lives. We want to know how their family is, how their grades are, just how they are in general. I have found if an athlete knows that a coach is genuinely interested in him as a person, he will go to battle and compete just a little bit harder."

Pollock's athletes have indeed competed hard, not only during his tenure at Clemson, but during his entire career. In his 18 years as a head coach, he has led teams to 18 conference titles (10 Southern Conference championships at Appalachian State, eight ACC titles at Clemson) and has been named a conference coach-of-the-year 21 times. He led his teams to the "Triple Crown" of ACC track during his first year at Clemson, the 1988-89 campaign. That year, the Tigers won the conference titles in cross country, indoor and outdoor track. Since then, they have swept the indoor ACC championships for three additional years and have won two more outdoor titles. The success that Pollock has enjoyed culminated in a second-place finish at the 1992 NCAA indoor championships for the Tigers and a National Coach-of-the-Year award for the head coach.

Accumulating such an impressive array of honors in so short a period of time was a little bit of a surprise to Pollock, but was by no means above the goals he had set for himself. "It has been a little overwhelming to reach the national level so quickly," he says. "But I think that the effort you put into it, you get out of it. I believe in pushing the athlete a little harder than he is capable of doing. I think he should be pushed a step beyond and then he will reach to the top of his capabilities, whether it is to be an Olympian, a national team member, an All-American, or an ACC champion. Everyone has certain talents and capabilities and I have to see what that person is capable of doing and make sure they don't settle for anything less, whether in athletics, in school, or in life. If you don't strive toward excellence, you'll never know."

His athletes have striven for excellence and have obtained it during his four years at Clemson. Tigers have brought home an incredible 43 All-America certificates and have won ACC Championships in 44 different events since the 1988-89 year. James Trapp and Michael Green were 1992 NCAA indoor champions on the way to leading the Tigers to a number-two team finish at the NCAA meet. Three current members of his squad (Trapp, Green, and Anthony Knight) and one of Pollock's former Tigers (Terrance Herrington) travelled to Barcelona to compete in the 1992 Olympic games. But his athletes have also enjoyed success in the classroom as well.

Pollock was named the top indoor track coach by his peers.

Just this past year, Cormac Finnerty, who was an All-American in indoor track, was also named a cross country Academic All-American. Michael Green, the 1992 NCAA Champion in the 55 meters, was also an academic All-America nominee.

"Being named the National Coach-of-the-Year was a tremendous honor because it is something that is voted on by my peers and I feel they have seen what we have accomplished. But it is an even greater honor to see the athletes succeed. I have to share my success with those athletes, because without them, I would never even be in the situation to win a coach-of-the-year award. I also have to credit our other coaches, Mark Block and Kyle Unland. They are both go-getters like myself who are willing to put in the extra work to find the superior athletes and then show interest in them once they get here. I also owe a lot to Clemson, because the administration has supported me and provided the facilities that we need to build a superior program."

Another important part of Pollock's coaching philosophy that has paid off during his years at Clemson and before is the importance of family. His wife Jackie, and children John (12), Kristen (9), and Kathryn (4) are familiar sites out at the track, whether during actual competition or just during daily practice. "My family has to sacrifice a lot," says Pollock. "From September until June, I am gone almost every weekend. But they support me in the good and the bad. My family knows our team and our team knows my family. We always say that we have three children and 45 other sons. A lot of the guys are long distances away from home and we want them to know that if they have a concern or a problem, or if they have something they need to talk about, whether its very complex or very simple, they can come and talk to us. I'm not saying that we can give them all the right answers, but hopefully we can show them both sides of the picture so that they can make the right decisions on their own."

Andrew Beecher, a 1992 indoor All-American, is one of the athletes who is far from his home, as he is one of four current Tigers who hails from Jamaica. "He has really been more than a coach," says Beecher. "He has been a father away from home. He and his family have been our family away from home. He checks up on us a lot, because he cares. He is genuinely interested in us as people, not just as athletes. I had a stress fracture last year and couldn't compete at nationals. While all of the other guys were gone to the meet, Jackie and the kids came by to see me and make sure I was doing OK. That really meant a lot to me and I'll never forget it."

That family atmosphere was also evident last spring, when most of the university's student population had finished finals and had gone home for the summer. Since the NCAA outdoor meet was not until June, those members of the track squad qualified for the meet only got a few days off, not nearly long enough for many to make the trip home. So what did they do for entertainment. Well, Green, Knight and Beecher went to Kristen and Kathryn Pollock's dance recital on campus. "The girls asked them to come watch them, and they did," laughs Pollock. "I think that really shows that we are like a family."

IPTAY Supports Tiger Band

by Brett Sowell

On those magnificent fall Saturday afternoons in Death Valley, Clemson Football and Tiger Band are one in the same in the hearts of all Tiger fans. Whether Clemson is playing in Memorial Stadium or on the road, the sounds of "TIGER RAG" are not far behind. However, without the continued support of the IPTAY Scholarship Fund, Tiger Band would not have the needed resources to produce the quality performances that Tiger fans have become accustomed to.

A group of students resembling the Clemson Band first performed around the turn of the century. Gradually, however, the band stabilized as a regular company of the Cadet Corps in the military school known as Clemson Agricultural and Mechanical College. Today, Clemson University's Tiger Band, which is present for all games, home, away, and neutral, is widely known for its precision marching, dynamic sound and famous Clemson spirit. Every year, Tiger Band plays before hundreds of thousands of fans, and has appeared at professional football games, televised broadcasts and numerous bowl games including the Orange, Peach, Gator, Independence, Hall of Fame and Citrus Bowls.

For the 1992-93 academic year, the IPTAY Board of Directors set aside $125,742.00 to fund the efforts of Tiger Band. This assistance is used for expenses ranging from musical equipment upgrades to a band scholarship grant-in-aid fund, although the majority of the funds are allocated to the band's trips to away football games. The presence of Tiger Band will once again be felt on the road this season as a full band, consisting of 300 students travels to Georgia Tech, Virginia, and N.C. State, while a pep band of 80 students is expected to attend the Wake Forest and Maryland games.

"The generous financial support that we receive from the individual donors of IPTAY is one of the greatest topics I like to talk about with my colleagues," says Dr. Richard Goodstein, director of Tiger Band. "It has become very expensive to maintain a marching band due to the increasing travel costs, but with the support of IPTAY, we continue to have the great opportunity to travel on the road."

IPTAY is known nationally for its unending support of the Clemson student-athletes, as well as the support for Tiger Band and other areas of Clemson University. The support IPTAY gives the band can be ranked in a class by itself.

But, Tiger Band is at a disadvantage compared to many other college bands because Clemson does not offer music as a major in the university curriculum. Tiger Band does have the strong support of IPTAY in its corner, a strong support that many other bands have to do without. "We are very proud of the quality of our band and we can compare ourselves favorably to many schools that have music majors," says Dr. Goodstein. "Since we do not offer a music major at Clemson, and our funding for Tiger Band must come from IPTAY, it is an obvious reason why we are envied by my peers."

IPTAY realizes that Tiger Band is at a disadvantage compared to other bands and feels the support given to Tiger Band by IPTAY is worthwhile.

"I have a positive feeling about Tiger Band and we at IPTAY are grateful for the hours the students put forth," says Allison Dalton, the executive secretary of IPTAY. "The students receive limited credit for the hours put in and we at IPTAY have a deep appreciation for their hard work."

Of the $125,742.00 set aside by the IPTAY Board of Directors for Tiger Band, almost 75 percent is allocated towards travel expenses. It is part of the Clemson tradition to have Tiger Band follow the team wherever it goes.

This will be evident when Coach Ken Hatfield's 75-man travel squad prepares to take on the Cavaliers from Virginia in mid-October. On that Friday prior to the game, over 300 students, including musicians, flag corp members and chaperones are scheduled to depart from Bowman Field in eight buses. Including transportation, lodging, meals and miscellaneous expenses, the total cost to send Tiger Band to the Virginia football game comes to $35,959.50, almost 30 percent of their overall budget.

The direct benefit of traveling to away games is the support the band provides to the team and the rallying point it provides for Tiger fans. IPTAY donors continue to feel the band gives Clemson teams on the road a great advantage.

"Our IPTAY Board of Directors feels good about the money allocated to Tiger Band," says Dalton. "The band is an integral part of the football and basketball programs here at Clemson. On the road, Tiger Band adds to the spirit of the Clemson crowd and the team is obviously motivated by the band. Our band makes its presence felt on the road and with its help, it makes a road game almost like playing at home. The members of Tiger Band are a great group of individuals and are fine representatives of Clemson University."

The support has given Tiger Band the opportunity to participate in every game, dating back to the 1982 Mirage Bowl played in Japan. Students also realize the importance of the funding by IPTAY to Tiger Band.

"My impression is that we are the best supported band in the ACC," says Ken Haigh, a recent Clemson graduate who participated in Tiger Band. "We are well provided for, and the band wouldn't be as attractive if it were not for IPTAY's support. This support attracts more musicians, and more musicians give us the opportunity to have better musicians," continued Haigh.

"IPTAY is our main financial supporter and we love going on away trips to participate with the Tigers. With IPTAY's support they have helped strengthen the music program of the entire university."

While individuals think IPTAY is primarily concerned with just fundraising in the athletic arena, the overall mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. Besides funding the band, as well as other endeavors, IPTAY also funds an academic scholarship for the university. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically.

This scholarship endowment is funded by certain company gifts, which are made as a result of employee contributions to IPTAY. In addition, the athletic department has made generous contributions to the endowment from athletic revenues. The IPTAY Academic Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson University providing $1.80 million in funds, currently benefitting more than 50 students.

Thanks to the strong support from IPTAY, Tiger Band will be once again literally "Shaking the Southland," this upcoming football season and the tradition of Clemson spirit and pride will continue.

IPTAY's support allows Tiger Band to travel to all Clemson games. It is one of the ways IPTAY contributes to the overall quality of student life at Clemson.

Strength Training

One of Clemson's most impressive athletic facilities is not quite as visible as the mammoth Death Valley, even though it may be an even more important reason for the Tigers' success. Clemson's strength training facility, located in Jervy Athletic Center, provides Clemson athletes with the very best in equipment, supervision and atmosphere, as the Tiger strength training staff knows that success in the area of football training will mean success on the football field.

Head Strength Coach Gary Wade and his staff work constantly to ensure that their facility is one of the nation's best. Several renovations made over the last several years have ensured that it is among the best, on the collegiate and professional levels. It is no accident that the Tigers have posted a 63-18-3 record, won four ACC Championships, had 16 first or second-team All-Americans, and 48 first-team all-conference selections since Wade joined the Clemson staff in 1985.

Wade and his assistants, Scott Bennett, Al Caronia, Jeff Fish, Jeff Looney, and Scott Hines personally supervise the individual weight programs of hundreds of athletes. The strength training staff spends long hours working around the various schedules of each sport and even takes the facility on the road when the Tiger football team plays in a bowl game.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.
 2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.
 3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.
- Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

Most emergencies occurring at the stadium result from pre-existing medical conditions. Bring your medical identification card or wear medical identification jewelry. Moderation is the key with dress, food, beverage intake and physical exertion. Our two more frequent serious medical problems at football games are allergic reactions to insect stings and heart attacks.

INSECT STINGS: Common at outdoor events. Treat immediately with ice. Seek medical advice. If allergic, carry a kit from your physician with you.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A HEART ATTACK:

The symptoms of a heart attack vary, but the usual warning signs are:

1. Uncomfortable pressure, fullness, squeezing or pain in the center of your chest lasting for two minutes or more.
2. Pain spreading to the shoulders, neck, jaw, arms, or back.

3. Dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea and/or shortness of breath.

Expect a Denial

Frequently heart attack victims deny they're having a heart attack. The event is frightening or they don't want the embarrassment of a false alarm. Therefore, they delay getting help by ignoring their symptoms or rationalizing, "it's just indigestion."

Find out what's really wrong. Prompt response can dramatically increase chances of survival and recovery.

New therapies have been developed that can minimize heart damage and save lives if treatment begins within the first few hours of symptom onset. "Time is muscle." Get help or get to a hospital immediately.

Clemson Memorial Stadium

In the first 50 years of Death Valley, the Tigers have won 74 percent of their games.

In 1991, two very special anniversaries in the Clemson football tradition were observed. Not only did the 1991 season mark the 10th anniversary of Clemson's National Championship season, but it also marked the 50th season of the place where the Tigers won five games that year: Memorial Stadium.

In the first 50 years of Memorial Stadium, Clemson has a record of 170-62-6, including a 12-0-1 ledger over the last two seasons. Clemson has a 15-game unbeaten streak at home and has a career winning ratio of 74 percent entering 1992.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing (there were many trees), but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger Football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow...and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 51st year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete was poured.

Howard says that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he says. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through. I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard says that on the first day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 PM and we played at 2:00 PM." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled - the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original foundation of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The most recent upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Athletic Director Bobby Robinson says that Memorial Stadium has many features that make it a top facility. "One thing that makes it so good is the number of sideline seats," he says. "We don't think there is a bad seat in the house.

"We also have outstanding dressing rooms, press facilities, and ample parking nearby. Another unique feature of the stadium is the number of private boxes."

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Howard's Rock is one of the many features that make Death Valley unique.

CONFERENCE CHAMPIONS

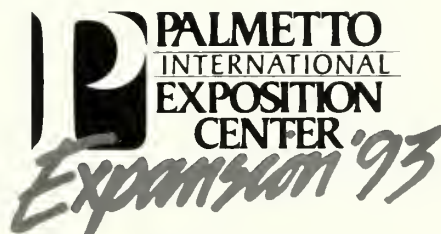

When you're in charge of kicking off your company's big conference, you want to make sure no one fumbles the ball or misses the goal. That's why meeting planners all across the country are choosing the Palmetto International Exposition Center for conferences, conventions, and trades shows. With more than 512,000 square feet of meeting and exhibit areas, we have the space and services you need to tackle a full season of business meetings, corporate parties, banquets and special events, no matter how large or small. You won't find us sitting on the sidelines making you call all the plays — our team scores extra points by arranging catering and decorating services and operating our new light and sound system.

Plus, we're moving up in the rankings for the Spring '93 season. That's when we open the doors to our new full-service Conference Center, featuring 30,000 square feet of additional meeting space, a fully equipped kitchen, and banquet seating and service for up to 2,500 people.

So put the conference champions on your team. Plan your next conference at the Palmetto International Exposition Center. It's sure to improve your standing.

Clemson Olympians

By Kerry Capps

Former Clemson athletes Gigi Fernandez and Mark McKoy brought home a pair of gold medals from the 1992 Summer Olympics.

Fernandez, who was an NCAA tennis finalist for the Lady Tigers in 1983 and led Clemson to a 30-7 record, best in Clemson history, teamed with Mary Joe Fernandez to win the women's doubles competition at Barcelona.

McKoy, a former Clemson sprinter who was the ACC champion in the 1980 110 hurdles, claimed a gold medal for Canada when he won the 110-meter high hurdles. McKoy helped Clemson to its first ACC outdoor track championship in 1980.

The tennis victory by "Team Fernandez" was one of the Olympic's most appealing stories. The pair, unrelated and inexperienced as doubles partners, defeated Spain's Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Conchita Martinez 7-5, 2-6, 6-2 in the battle for the gold.

Gigi, 28, earlier this year claimed doubles titles at Wimbledon and the French Open. She also has a couple of US Open Doubles Championships in her resume and is ranked in the top 10 in the world in doubles and in the top 25 in the world in singles.

"This is more thrilling than winning Wimbledon," she said. "Playing for your country, playing in front of the atmosphere was special. It is something I will remember the rest of my life. I'm very happy for Puerto Rico and I'm very happy for the United States."

Fernandez became the first athlete with Clemson ties to win an Olympic Gold Medal for the United States in a non-demonstration sport. Former Tiger pitcher Mike Milchin, now at the AAA level for the St. Louis Cardinals, was a member of the Gold Medal US Olympic Baseball Team in 1988, but it was a demonstration sport that year.

A native of Puerto Rico, Gigi now resides in Aspen, CO. Mary Joe, who was born in the Dominican Republic to a Spanish father and a Cuban mother, now lives in Miami.

"Two girls born on different islands get the gold for America," said Mary Joe's mother, Siliva. "This is what makes America."

McKoy was one of six former or current Clemson track athletes who participated in the Olympics. His time of 13.12 that led to the Gold Medal was the first Olympic Track Gold Medal for Canada since 1932. At age 30, he became the oldest athlete ever to win the Gold Medal in the 110 hurdles.

Other Olympians with Clemson ties included sprinter James Trapp, a cornerback on the Clemson football team and Miler Terrance Herrington, who represented the United States; sprinter Michael Green and hurdler Anthony Knight, who competed for Jamaica; and sprinter Gail Prescod, who represented the Caribbean island of St. Vincent.

Herrington competed for Clemson between 1985 and 1989 and was an All-American three times outdoors and once indoors. He was a member of Clemson's National Championship 4X800 meter relay team at the 1989 NCAA Indoor Championships.

Also competing was former Clemson tennis player Owen Casey, who represented Ireland, who is a three-time Davis Cup participant and a former All-ACC player for the Tigers. He lettered for Chuck Kriese's team between 1989 and 1990.

Trapp had what might have been the most frustrating Olympic experience, as he was bumped from the U.S. gold medal-winning 4x100-meter relay squad by track legend Carl Lewis.

Trapp, who finished seventh in the 100 meters and fifth in the 200 meters in the Olympic Trials, earned a spot on the team specifically for the relay team. Lewis, who placed a disappointing sixth in the 100 meters at the trials, had originally announced his intentions to compete only in the long jump. But when an injury sidelined Mark Weatherspoon in the 100-meter semifinals, Lewis stepped in to compete for the relay team. Trapp had been scheduled as the first relay substitute.

"When Carl (Lewis) got over there, he wanted to run," said Trapp. "You've got to respect the man who really built track and field. He's always anchored a great relay, so you have to let him have his due. When his time is up, he'll step down."

With Lewis running the anchor leg, the American team won the Gold Medal in world record time. Ironically, had Trapp competed during any of the preliminary rounds of the 4x100 relay, he would have received a gold medal. But as an unused backup, he came home only with bitter-sweet memories.

"I respect coach (Mel) Rosen's decision over there," Trapp said. "The decisions that were made were basically respectable decisions.... When I left the Trials, I had an understanding that (Lewis) might want to run the relay, and when he came over and showed he was in top form again, hey, more power to him, it's all about respect."

Once the decision was made to run Lewis in the relay, Trapp returned home to prepare for the beginning of preseason football drills at Clemson. With a solid season and his obvious pure gift of speed, he could be an NFL draft selection in 1993.

Several other Clemson athletes competed in the US Olympic Trials in New Orleans, but failed to make the US team. The list included Wesley Russell in the 400 meters, Kim Graham in the 200 meters, Angel Fleetwood in the 400 meters, and Angela Dolby in the shot.

Today's Band Program

As Clemson fans pay tribute to IPTAY, Tiger Band salutes another classic...classical music, that is. The band will open tonight's festivities with a traditional pregame performance. Included in the pregame show are renditions "God Bless America", followed by the Clemson University Alma Mater and the "Star-Spangled Banner". Also during the pregame show, Tiger Band will take the field in the traditional spelling of "Tigers" with Alan M. and Eva Johnstone of Orangeburg, SC dotting the "i". Mr. Johnstone is charter member of IPTAY.

As the Tigers assemble at the top of the Hill, Tiger Band will play "Sock it to 'Em," and as the cannon sounds, "Tiger Rag" will burst forth, as the players run down the hill into a packed nighttime crowd in Death Valley.

Tonight's halftime show is packed with classical music favorites and excitement for the Death Valley audience, as well as our national television audience watching on ESPN. Tiger Band will open the show with a performance of "Pictures at an Exhibition," featuring the Tiger Tuba section. Following will be a performance of "Hall of the Mountain King," also featuring the tubas, as well as the Tiger twirlers. Tonight's finale promises to be a "goosebumpy" one, as the band strikes up "The 1812 Overture". During the performance of the closing number, a fireworks display will be provided, choreographed to the music.

Tiger Band will exit the field in the traditional spelling of CLEMSON playing "The Song that shakes the Southland...TIGER RAG!"

Tiger Band will be a part of the special nighttime pageantry at Death Valley for the Florida State game.

Nature Is Truly A Work Of Art. It's Our Responsibility To Keep It That Way.

Nature, our most valuable resource, is a delicately balanced ecosystem entrusted to all of us. At Laidlaw Environmental Services, we take seriously our responsibility to manage, protect and restore the environment.

As the first statewide sponsor of South Carolina Waterfowl Association's Adopt-A-Habitat program, we helped provide nesting areas for many of our state's wood ducks. We helped spur a new industry by turning a clay mine in Clarendon County into a new crawfish farm; and our exciting, multimedia educational program, Earth Academy, is teaching children and adults how they can be part of the solution to recycling and hazardous waste problems.

Managing and protecting the environment is an art and a science. We will continue to search for ways to involve all of us, as partners, through education, reclamation, and conservation.

Helping Preserve Our Resources Through Conservation, Land Reclamation, and Education.

The South Carolina Waterfowl Association's award for Corporate Sponsor of the Year 1991-92 was given to recognize Laidlaw Environmental's dedication to the conservation and enhancement of South Carolina's wetlands and wetland wildlife resources.

Vickery Hall

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 18 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. But Clemson's commitment to provide its student-athletes with awesome facilities doesn't apply only to areas of athletic competition, but to academic life as well.

The most convincing evidence of this commitment is Clemson University's Academic Learning Center, Vickery Hall, which opened in the spring of 1991. The $3 million facility is among the first in the nation devoted entirely to the athletic-academic advising program. The two-story, 27,000-square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes, and consolidates a variety of academic services for their use.

The goal of the facility is to function as a support system in providing the student-athlete the opportunity to reach his or her full potential. Vickery Hall is a commitment by the Clemson University Athletic Department to give each student-athlete a meaningful opportunity to make his or her Clemson experience a fulfilling one, not only during his or her years at Clemson, but long after the student-athlete enters the professional world.

"Vickery Hall is one of the most important facilities the Clemson University Athletic Department has ever built or will ever build. It makes a philosophical statement about the institutional commitment - giving our student-athletes the same opportunity to achieve their full potential academically that we give them athletically. We're very serious about that," said Athletic Director Bobby Robinson.

Given the time pressures of athletic participation and practice, student athletes face a difficult balancing act in trying to perform well both on the playing field and in the classroom. With respect to this, the Clemson academic advising program has provided one of the best academic tutoring and advising programs in the nation over the last several years. The completion of Vickery Hall gives the Academic Advising Program an even greater opportunity to help student-athletes reach the short-term goal of graduation and the long-term goal of success in the world.

Vickery Hall is located in the mainstream of east campus, behind Jordan Hall at the top of Bryan Mall. The facility is impressive aesthetically, but even more so for the many purposes it serves. The main entrance to the building is a 1,570-square foot reception/office area, comprised of five advisors' offices, two graduate student offices, and a conference room. Also located on the bottom floor is the office of Bill D'Andrea, the director of Clemson's student-athlete enrichment program.

The building also boasts a 175-seat auditorium to be used for classes, team meetings, review sessions, and seminars. The various speakers and lecturers who will come to work with Clemson student-athletes as part of the student-enrichment program will also use this facility. The auditorium is equipped with a projection booth and state-of-the-art audio and video equipment and is available to other campus groups when not in use for athletic advising.

The 13,000-square-foot study and tutoring area on the second floor comprises the majority of the center and is used primarily during the evening hours. A large 65-seat study room and nine 20-seat study rooms are designed as classrooms with freestanding desks. One-on-one or small group instruction takes place in 28 small tutoring rooms accommodating eight to 10 students each, two medium tutoring rooms for 20 people each and three large tutoring rooms for 40 people each.

Computing Facilities

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to providing the student-athletes at Clemson with such equipment.

Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Services Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open six days a week, for 16 hours a day on Monday through Thursday.

The lab staff consists of mostly graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course as well as the many management, engineering and business courses that deal with personal computers. Student-athletes may also arrange tutoring sessions outside normal lab hours any time during the school year.

Computers in the lab can reach many of the other machines on campus, including the NAS mainframe, and are in turn, connected to a world-wide internetwork, allowing lab machines to access computing resources throughout the world. This also allows access to lab resources from computers throughout the world.

The following is a list of some of the equipment available:

- * 18 Macintosh personal computers
- * 15 IBM personal computers
- * 5 Laser Printers
- * 2 Novell Netware Servers (allows users to access and share files from different computers around campus.)

The $3 million Academic Learning Center, Vickery Hall, is among the first in the nation devoted entirely to the athletic-academic advising program.

Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program

The Student-Athlete Career Assistance Program is one of the most important programs provided by the staff of Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide help in securing summer employment and to aid in meeting long-term career goals.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center and the Athletic Department, Bill D'Andrea is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with The Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athlete with a job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Long Term Career Assistance Program will be coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and will focus on resume writing and interview techniques so that each student-athlete will be competitive and aggressive when dealing with companies who visit the Clemson campus.

Personal Growth Program

Another aspect of Clemson University's commitment to help student-athletes reach their potential in all areas of their life - academically, athletically, and socially, is the recently implemented personal growth program. This program is one of the many purposes of Vickery Hall. This particular area of student development is designed to enhance and support the lives of student-athletes during their enrollment in college as well as in their life experiences after graduation.

Bobby Douglas, the Development Coordinator, and the Vickery Hall staff realize that student-athletes have more obligations than a regular college student. The personal growth program seeks to eliminate some of the stresses of adjustment to the higher level of academics and athletics. It is the group's special task to assist the student-athlete by creating a finely tuned balance of all areas to insure success in obtaining a Clemson University degree, by supporting successful athletic practice and competition, enhancing personal growth, and helping with the transition to life after college.

A series of personal growth programs will be offered to student-athletes throughout each semester. Some programs may accomplish their objectives in one session, while others may be ongoing throughout the academic year. Some of the personal growth programs are as follows:

Vickery Hall's Microcomputer Lab is open six days a week for the use of student-athletes.

Alcohol and Drug Issues:

The intent of this program is to provide the student-athlete with an overview of the disease of addictions and chemical dependence. Emphasis will be placed on providing basic awareness of how substance abuse affects individuals, families and athletic teams.

Current Topics of Concern:

The idea behind this segment of the Personal Growth Plan is to address issues that affect students such as human sexuality, birth control, date rape, etc.

Career Preparation:

The Career Preparation Plan is to encourage all student-athletes to think about life after sports and after graduation. Many sources of information will be available, from career testing to self-paced computer programs, and even with resume preparation and interview skills.

Nutrition and Eating Disorders:

Eating habits and proper diet are very important in maintaining a sound body and mind. The focus of this program revolves around presenting information so that student-athletes can analyze their own eating habits and carefully choose a balanced diet with enough calories to maintain good health.

Personal Finance:

Student-athletes on athletic scholarships are not allowed to have jobs during the academic year. Therefore, it is important to budget personal finances so they do not run out before the semester. This program not only discusses budgeting but also the responsible use of credit.

Stress Management:

All student-athletes face additional concerns during their college days than normal students. Many times these add stress to the everyday lives of student-athletes. The object of this program is to teach the student-athlete ways of identifying and handling personal stress so it does not interfere with the maintenance of good mental and physical health.

Study Skills/Time Management: These two topics are combined because a major part of developing good study skills involves having the time to delegate to studying. Objectives of this program are to expose student-athletes to different types of study techniques that are proven effective.

Motivation/Self Esteem:

The objective of this program is to improve the level of self esteem for student-athletes to positively impact their productivity in all areas of campus life.

George Bishop, Class of '52, founder of South Carolina's Waccamaw Pottery, Waccamaw Clay Products, WCI Investments and other businesses, remembers how Alumni Professor of Ceramic Engineering Gil Robinson got his attention:

"I made a zero on one of Dr. Robinson's quizzes. When I asked him why I hadn't gotten credit for at least part of my work, he quickly informed me that results, not efforts, are what you're judged on in all aspects of life. That lesson has affected the way I approach my work, my family and all my dealings with people. He truly shaped my life."

Great Tiger Wins in Death Valley

By Sanford Rogers

Mike Eppley saw it as a quarterback competition. Mark Wilson saw it as an unprecedented demonstration of student involvement. Maryland saw it as an unusual way to celebrate an Official ACC title. Boyd Bird just saw balloons.

These are just some of the consequences of the 1983 Clemson-Maryland Game, which would have to be considered as one of the greatest performances ever by a Tiger team in Death Valley. Not only did Clemson thrash the Terps 52-27, but a world record for a balloon release was set with 363,729 balloons being sent into the clear November sky.

The Tigers, who were ineligible for the league crown that season, were out to prove who had the best team in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Maryland, on the other hand, came into the contest as leading in the "official" ACC standings, and seemed destined for a certain bowl bid to the Florida Citrus Bowl.

"Maryland came into the game with the attitude that they were the best team in the league," said then Clemson Quarterback Mike Eppley (now a color commentator for Clemson football games). "We were determined to show them that we did have the best team in the league, bar none." Eppley had extra motivation for the contest. "Boomer Esiason (now the starting signal caller with the Cincinnati Bengals) was starting quarterback for Maryland. Everyone knows just what kind of player he still is. For me it was important to show that I could compete on that same level."

Eppley did more than just show he was able to compete on that level, he excelled. The Charlotte, NC native had one of his best days as a Clemson quarterback, with an 11-16 passing performance, with three touchdown passes and no interceptions. No Tiger signal caller has thrown three TD's in a game since. Eppley put Clemson on the board early in the first quarter as Kenny Flowers scampered 64 yards with a screen pass. The game continued with the same script as Clemson jumped out to a 28-7 halftime lead.

A 14-yard run by Stacey Driver gave Clemson a 42-7 lead in the third quarter, and the crowd began to shout "bring on Nebraska," the nation's number-one team at the time. After the contest Esiason called it, "the worst loss of his career, including little league" (he hadn't suffered that Super Bowl loss just yet!). "Give that Clemson team credit," said Esiason. "They were the better team just dominating us in every phase of the game."

The balloon release, appropriately named "Rising Above", proved to be tougher to pull off than the victory over the Terps. Under the direction of then Student Body President Mark Wilson, the balloon release took months of planning. "We had originally planned to just send up 75,000 or so at the Georgia game," recalled Wilson. "But then we decided to go for the world record. Bill McLellan (former Clemson AD) and Joe Turner (former Executive Secretary of IPTAY) had the students in charge of the project go through a simulation at the stadium just to see if we were serious about the project. They must have been pleased with what they saw, as they gave us the go ahead."

As we know now they passed the test. The project was set into motion with student groups being recruited to help with expansion of the helium filled balloons. Wilson remembered the morning of the game. "The real success of the project hinged on whether the students would show at 7:00 AM the morning of the game. We had over 3,000 students signed up, but I didn't know if a Clemson Friday night would keep some people from making it."

Wilson still remembers what happened next. "Len Gough (Now Associate AD at Clemson), Bill Dill and I were waiting at the bottom of the hill by the stadium at about 6:30 AM. There was hardly anyone there. But just like clockwork there were hordes of students coming down the hill by 6:45 AM. It was just an unbelievable sight."

Current Defensive Line Coach Les Herrin, who was on the Clemson staff in 1983 remembers the game with fond memories. "I think that our team was ready to play that week," recalled Herrin. "That team wanted to earn the respect that it deserved. We knew that Maryland would end up as the official ACC Champion, but our team was determined to show everyone who had the best team in the Atlantic Coast Conference." Herrin feels that the balloons had an effect on the contest. "Anything that gets the crowd excited is good for the student-athlete. An athlete will play on the emotion of the crowd. That game was a perfect example of what crowd involvement can do."

Herrin still remembers the moment when the balloons were sent airborne. "I was already in the pressbox when the team came down the hill. When those balloons went up it looked like an orange eclipse. For a couple of seconds you wondered where the sky was."

The effects of the game were far reaching. The Tigers moved up four spots in the national rankings to 13th, while Maryland dropped from the 11th spot in the country all the way to 20th. Maryland, who had plans before the game of being in Florida for the holidays, had to settle for a trip to the Sun Bowl.

Wilson still has fond memories of the contest. "It was an amazing experience. I still wonder how we were able to pull it off. But the thing I remember most is how all the students worked together to achieve the goal."

This point was best illustrated the following year. Wilson was in a local fast-food restaurant when a Clemson student and her father saw a picture of the balloons being released. The girl turned to her father and said, "Look what I was a part of, we did that."

"That is what we were trying to achieve," said Wilson. "When I heard the girl telling her father what she was a part of, it made my day. Coming into the project we were hoping for student support. I still feel proud of accomplishing that goal."

Perhaps the most interesting consequence of the game came from Maxton, NC. Boyd Bird, who is some 300 miles from Clemson, found remnants of the celebration. About four hours after the balloons had been released Boyd found several of them in his back yard.

"We also had reports of balloons landing in Laurinburg, NC," said former Sports Information Director Bob Bradley. "That whole next week we got calls from all over the Carolinas. That was one of the most memorable spectacles I have seen at Clemson."

It was truly a memorable Saturday for the players, student body, fans and coaches, one that certainly contributed to the mystique of Death Valley.

Eppley threw three TD passes and led Clemson to 544 yards in total offense.

James Trapp — IPTAY Athlete-of-the-Year

In Track

- ✓ The only 10-time All-American in Clemson history, he won five All-America certificates in 1992.
- ✓ Has won more ACC Championships than any Tiger in history, he has won 12 conference titles, six in individual events and six as a member of a relay squad.
- ✓ The 1992 NCAA Indoor Champion in the 200 meters, he set a new Clemson record with a time of 20.66 at the national meet in Indianapolis, IN.
- ✓ Also a 1992 indoor All-American in the 55 meters, he finished fourth in that event at the NCAA Championships.
- ✓ A 1992 outdoor All-American in the 100 and 200 meters, he finished third in the 100 meters at 10.25 and fourth in the 200 meters at 20.49.
- ✓ Clocked in at 10.14 in the semifinals of the 100 meters at the 1992 NCAA outdoor meet, that mark ties for the ACC record (non-wind aided).
- ✓ A member of the United States Olympic team that travelled to Barcelona for the 1992 games, he was an alternate on the 4x100 meter relay.
- ✓ 1992 Olympic Trial Qualifier in both the 100 and 200 meters.
- ✓ Set the Clemson indoor and outdoor records in the 200 meters in 1992 with a 20.17 clocking outdoors at the Olympic Trials and the 20.66 at the NCAA indoor meet. Also the number-two performer in Clemson history in the 100 meters at 10.03 (wind-aided) and the 55 meters at 6.16, he posted both of those marks in 1992 also.
- ✓ Also holds the Clemson records with the 4x100 meter relay at 39.14 and with the 4x400 meter relay at 3:05.09, that mark was set at the 1992 ACC outdoor meet.
- ✓ Has been named the MVP of two Atlantic Coast Conference Championships, the 1990 and 1992 outdoor meets. To earn the honor in 1992, he won the 100 and 200 meters, anchored the winning 4x100 meter relay and ran the second-leg on the champion 4x400 meter squad.

In Football

- ✓ A member of three top 20 teams last year, football, indoor and outdoor track.

Trapp is slated to be a starter in Clemson's secondary this year. He has already been a letterman on three Top 20 Tiger teams.

Trapp has won the MVP Award at two of the last three ACC outdoor track meets and is a 10-time All-American.

- ✓ Has been a member of three top 20 Clemson football teams.
- ✓ Slated to be a starting cornerback in 1992.
- ✓ Has played in 29 games in his career and has 50 total tackles
- ✓ Missed five games in 1992 due to a hip injury, he was in for 147 snaps for the season, 92 of those snaps were in the last four games of the season.
- ✓ Had the top performance of his career against Duke in the Coca Cola Bowl in Tokyo, Japan, when he had five tackles in only 30 plays, and pressured the Blue Devil quarterback three times, forcing incomplete passes on each occasion.

Why some teams have a stronger bench than others.

Tigers in the Pros

by Tim Bourret

"Be prepared for the opportunity!"

That is an axiom of life that has served Jeff Bostic well for many years.

For years he has been told he wasn't good enough to make it, yet, every time he has proven the experts wrong. Why? He has been prepared, even when most athletes would have given up, or pursued a different direction.

Jeff Bostic might be the only football player in history to make the NFL's Pro Bowl after not being drafted out of college, or receiving a Division I scholarship offer to a major university during his senior year of high school.

As a 190-pound offensive lineman his senior year at Smith High School in Greensboro, NC, Bostic was not considered a "Blue Chip" recruit. He was just Joe Bostic's little brother. Joe was at Clemson, a starter for the Tigers as a freshman, and a key member of one of Clemson's greatest recruiting classes ever. (Joe went on to become a two-time All-American at Clemson and had a 10-year NFL career with the Cardinals.)

Jeff was planning on attending Fork Union Military Academy, where he hoped to mature physically and earn a scholarship the next year. But that all changed one day in mid-August when one of the 1976 signees decided Clemson was not the right spot.

"When someone quit and the scholarship opened up, I got a call from Clemson," said Bostic. "Practice had already been underway for about a week. I registered, picked up my books, went to class and then to practice all in the same day. I still remember how tired I was that night. Two-a-days were easy compared to that day."

"Be prepared for the opportunity!"

Bostic didn't see any action as a freshman, but he became a starter in 1977. He missed just one start over the 1977, 1978 and 1979 seasons. As a center and guard throughout his career he was one of the reasons Clemson football made a resurgence. All three of those teams appeared in bowl games and won at least eight contests. He was an All-ACC performer in 1979 when he helped Clemson to wins over Georgia, North Carolina and Notre Dame.

"It was a great four years at Clemson, it was the most enjoyable time of my life," recalls Bostic. "I made so many friends during that time, people I am still close to today."

"It was an exciting time at Clemson because we had not been to a bowl game in so long (18 years) before the 1977 season. When we went to Georgia and won (7-6) we knew it was going to be a unique season."

"That 1978 team (11-1) might be the most talented team in Clemson history. The 1977 and 1978 teams laid the groundwork for the 15 years of success Clemson has had. When we beat Ohio State in the Gator Bowl (1978) it gave Clemson national credibility."

"When I came to Clemson the capacity of the stadium was about 43,000. When I left they had drawn up the plans to make it 84,000. I feel like I was a part of that growth and it is something that makes me feel proud. Clemson used to be happy with a 6-5 season, now they expect 9-2. Our group changed how people looked at Clemson football."

Bostic was the leader of Danny Ford's first team. The 1979 club posted an 8-3 regular season record, which led to a Peach Bowl berth. Clemson had lost a lot of great players off the 1978 team (seven senior offensive starters went on to start in the NFL) and Clemson football could have returned to mediocrity. But, Bostic's leadership kept Clemson in the top 20 most of the season.

Bostic certainly had hopes of following his brother's footsteps into the NFL. But, he played his senior year at guard at about 235 pounds. Pro scouts thought he was too light, and thus, he was not among the over 300 players drafted in May of 1980.

He signed as a free agent with the Philadelphia Eagles, but was cut. The Washington Redskins picked him up because they needed a snapper, a talent he performed to perfection his three years in the Clemson lineup. That is all he did in the 1980 season in Washington under Jack Pardee. In 1981, Joe Gibbs was named the head coach, and Bostic's career took a turn for the best. But, it was not an immediate rise to prominence.

"I looked and saw this guy (Bostic) wasn't dressed out," recalls Gibbs, who has guided the Redskins to four Super Bowls, including three championships. "I asked someone, 'Who is that?'. and I was told, 'Oh, that's our deep snapper. That's all he does is snap.' I said, 'Gosh, we can't keep a guy around here who just does that. We've got to get rid of him. We've got to find somebody who can play and deep snap.'"

"We put him in there to play in the first pre-season game and we haven't gotten him out of there since."

"When Joe came in everyone became equal," said Bostic.

"Be prepared for the opportunity!"

Now in his 13th year in the NFL, Bostic is a charter member of "The Hogs", the most famous offensive line in NFL history. Bostic and Joe Jacoby are the only remaining members of the original group that took Washington to the Super Bowl title in 1982. In 1983 Bostic played in the Pro Bowl and has been a starter every year but 1984, when he sustained a knee injury that forced him to miss most of the season. He has played in four Super Bowls and owns three Super Bowl Championship rings.

"You just can't describe the thrill you feel playing in a Super Bowl. Whether it is your first, second or third Super Bowl, it does not matter. The feeling is still there. Knowing 150 million people from all over the world are watching. And, then to win...to feel you are the best in the world. It is just the best feeling you can have."

It has been a storybook career for Bostic, but he still finds time to follow Clemson. "Living in the Washington, DC area, it is easy to follow Clemson. We get the Jefferson Pilot Network up here so I watch the Clemson games whenever I can. We usually don't meet until 5:00 PM on Saturdays so we usually have time to watch plenty of college football."

Bostic follows Clemson in particular and the college game in general and he has a message for young players today. "Less than a tenth of a percent of the college football players in all the divisions make it in the NFL. Your education is very important. Football can end so quickly with an injury, but once you get your degree they can't take it away from you. I have been fortunate in that I have not had that many injuries, but I have seen so many players who have had a career cut short. If you make it in the pros and you have a degree, you've got it made."

"Be Prepared for the Opportunity!"

Bostic has gone from a 190-pound high school senior to Pro Bowl participant and three-time Super Bowl champion.

The Last Word

by Bob Bradley

(Ed—Here is the second installment of memorable Frank Howard stories provided by Clemson Sports Information Director Emeritas Bob Bradley.)

Howard has had his run-ins with law enforcement officers down through the years, but now drinks coffee with many of them of all ranks at the Clemson Holiday Inn. Some refer to this group as "The-First-Liar-Ain't Gotta-Chance-Club."

But one day back when he was coaching Howard was returning from Greenville to the Clemson campus. At that particular time one had to travel first to Easley, then to Liberty, next to Norris and on to Central before finally arriving in Clemson.

Norris had a one-man police force and there's no telling how many Clemson students, staff members and professors had been flagged by this one person. One could never guess what his routine was, but from town limit sign to town limit sign, it was best to travel about 34 MPH.

On this particular day Howard wasn't paying much attention to his speedometer and was pulled by this Norris policeman.

Figuring he was only eight miles from home, Howard struck up a conversation geared to where he would not be given a ticket. But it seemed that the more Howard talked, the more the policeman wrote. Finally, Howard said: "I'm the head football coach over here at Clemson." And the officer replied: "Yeah, I know. And I'm the head catcher here at Norris."

Howard has always been ready to talk about his players, whether they were still in uniform, or were already out in life on their own. He got ragged quite a bit by his Coffee Club members for not having as many pro players as some of his counterparts.

"The most satisfaction I have," he said one morning at the club, "is seeing some ole guard or tackle or halfback become a lawyer, or a doctor, or a successful businessman and a good citizen. It's worth more than a hundred touchdowns. And that's the truth, if I ever told it."

One Monday morning while downing their coffee, members of the group framed up on Howard again concerning the pro games of the day before where several ex-ACC players had had decent days, but former Clemson players were not mentioned prominently.

"Yeah, but my players are going to be making a lot more in the long run than those pro players," Howard boasted. "I got boys out there who are presidents, engineers, college professors, diplomats, college presidents, and believe it or not, I even have four or five who are preachers."

About that time, as luck would have it, one of his ex-players who became a preacher walked into the Holiday Inn dining room.

"Rev. (Joe) Bowen, come over here for a minute, please sir," Howard said reverently.

"Rev. Bowen, did you ever play football for me,?" he was asked by Howard.

"Why yes," Bowen answered without batting an eye.

"I heard the Lord's name used a lot more on the practice field than I ever did in the seminary."

The hiring of Frank Howard and the subsequent agreement between Clemson and the coach was unique story in itself.

Howard's name was placed in nomination by Professor S.R. "Slim" Rhodes at an athletic council meeting that had been scheduled to hire a replacement for Jess Neely, who had left for Rice. Howard, who was seated in the back of the room, supposedly waiting to be interviewed as a candidate, seconded his own nomination. The other council members took it from there and voted for Howard as Clemson's 17th head football coach.

Howard received a four-year contract, which he ultimately misplaced a few years later on a business trip. It was the only contract he received during his 30 years at Clemson. Every year after that his acceptance to an offer to continue as coach was formalized by a handshake.

Howard was (and still is) quick on the trigger with an answer when asked a question. One year (1963) when the touring sportswriters came to the Clemson campus on their annual visit, it so happens that Clemson was looking for a punter to replace Eddie Wernitz, who had had a fabulous career with the Tigers.

The late Earle Hellen, working at the Greensboro (NC) Record at the time, asked: "Coach, who's gonna do the kicking this year?"

Without batting an eye, Howard retorted: "The alumni."

But Howard was probably at his best after a defeat.

Clemson played Duke in Durham in 1960 and the Blue Devils had a pair of good runners in Joel Arrington and Mark Leggett, and they had a fairly decent day as the Tigers lost, 21-6.

One question which generally comes in a post-game interview with the coach is, "What was the turning point in the game?" And this press conference was no different from most of the rest.

When this question was posed to Howard he was ready and replied: "Three years ago when I didn't recruit any good halfbacks."

###

In 1990 and 1991 several major conferences re-aligned themselves by taking in one or more teams, hoping it would be of mutual benefit to both the school and conference. And many thousands of words, both pro and con, were written and spoken on these changes.

Howard said that he didn't know why there was so much ado being made about the Atlantic Coast Conference expanding to nine teams by admitting Florida State.

"I advocated adding two teams to the conference around 1960," he said when the ACC raised the college board score to 800 (and all the other leagues did not have a minimum), "and priced ourselves right out of the bowl picture."

One of the conference officials asked me why did I want a conference with 10 teams? I told him then we could just play each other and nobody would know just how good we really were."

When the conference was thinking about putting restrictions on football scholarships, Howard sent them this message:

"If you're gonna kill the game, also do this:

"Pool all gate receipts.

"Pay all coaches the same, win, lose or draw, and "Rotate the coaches among the conference schools every four years, like the Methodists do their ministers."

###

In 1977 Howard entered the Anderson Memorial Hospital to have a few tests run "because I haven't been feeling too well lately" he explained. The next day the Clemson baseball team left for Omaha to play in the College World series.

As it turned out, Howard had to have his gall bladder removed. He said the thing exploded and they had to pick it out with a pair of tweezers. During this ordeal, his blood pressure went almost to zero, and only the quick action of a Clemson (graduate) male nurse pulled him through, although it was touch and go for several days.

After the crisis was over and he was taken out of intensive care, the Clemson sports information director, who was in Omaha with the baseball team, went down to Western Union and sent the following telegram to Howard: "The Clemson baseball team, by a vote of ten to nine, wishes you a speedy recovery."

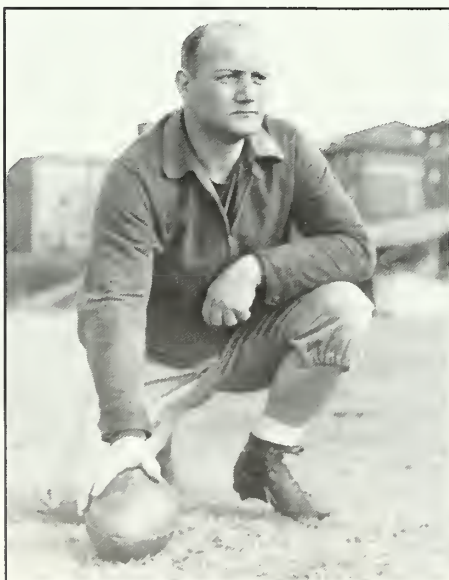

After the baseball team returned from the CWS, Howard tried to find out who the "nine so-and-sos were who voted against me."

Howard told his son Jimmy after coming through all of the complications that he thought he had died.

Jimmy asked, "Did you see Jesus?" and Howard said, "No"

Jimmy then asked his dad, "Did you see the devil?" and Howard said, "No, but I must have been in hell because I saw (former Wake Forest Coach) Peahead Walker."

###

Howard seconded his own nomination as Clemson head coach in 1940.

PRE-ENGINEERED TEAMWORK

When Ivester, Inc., one of the region's leading electrical and HVAC contractors, decided to build a new headquarters, the Yeargin Enterprises Construction Team was their choice.

As a registered builder/dealer for American Building products, Yeargin selected their pre-engineered metal building system to best meet Ivester's needs. Critical features included unequalled color retention in the roof and wall panels, a standing seam roof with a 20-year warranty, and timely delivery and installation of all building components.

The result? An attractive, cost effective new headquarters building with ample office, shop, and customer service space for Ivester's future growth, all completed within schedule and budget.

That's the Yeargin story Success through Teamwork

"We were extremely impressed with Yeargin Enterprises' attention to detail in building the solution to our needs. Their expeditious construction methods, gave us an outstanding new facility on a very workable schedule and budget."
